

Japanese Jingoes See War Challenge In American Action

Tokio Newspapers Call on Nation to Prepare for Any Eventuality, Hinting at Military Action—One Editorial Demands Resignation of Present Ministry—See Coolidge Veto.

BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.

Tokio, April 17.—The Yorucho Choho, an afternoon newspaper representing the jingoes, declares editorially today that the action of the American congress in passing the exclusion legislation amounts to a challenge to Japan. It says the nation must prepare for whatever may come, even war. The Kokumin demands the immediate resignation of the ministry.

Disatisfaction in high official circles with Ambassador Hanihara's handling of the immigration situation at Washington is reported by the vernacular press. Other Japanese ambassadors are said to have rallied to the support of the Washington envoy and will oppose any possible efforts to make him the scapegoat of the exclusion fiasco.

Editorials of the morning newspapers, written prior to the news of the senate's acceptance of the exclusion act, were markedly moderate in tone. Although they admitted the probability of the senate voting the exclusion, they were of the opinion that President Coolidge will veto the legislation.

Officials do not deny the probabilities of unpleasant popular reactions, and it is fully expected that the opposition will make all possible political capital from the government's immigration defeat.

The action of congress comes as a blow in the heart of an election campaign throughout Japan. The government is determined to take a vigorous stand against any policy of retaliation. It asserts it will do its utmost to curb popular indignation.

EFFECTS OF VOTE TO EXCLUDE JAPS TROUBLE LEADERS

WHY CALIFORNIANS FAVOR JAPANESE EXCLUSION TOLD

Japan May Retaliate by Passing Similar Law Against Americans in Island Empire.

Language of Jap Ambassador and California Feeling Caused Action by Congress, Says Sullivan.

BY THOMAS L. STOKES.

Washington, April 16.—As the determination to exclude Japanese from the shores of this country by a rigid statute becomes more fixed, officials here are turning their attention to the possible effect on the future relations of the two countries, and the picture is not pleasing.

The situation at the present moment is tense, though it is not believed that the action of congress will lead to breaking off relations with Japan, or other immediate dangerous consequences. It is generally felt, however, that there will be harmful results of a far-reaching nature, which will touch every aspect of this country's interests in Japan and the far east, both commercially and politically.

Gets D. A. R. Approval.

While President Coolidge and administration officials still kept silent Wednesday, the senate further clinched its previous action by a record vote on the Shortridge amendment, which carried 71 to 4. The four who voted against the amendment were: Warren, Wyoming; McLean, Connecticut; Sterling, South Dakota; and McLean, Wyoming. The amendment, which would exclude Japanese from the United States, was introduced by Senator Sterling, of South Dakota, and was approved by a vote of 71 to 4.

From another quarter came an expression of public opinion with the introduction of a resolution before the D. A. R. convention in session here, approving the action of congress. Significantly, the resolution was presented by an eastern delegation, that from Maryland. At least two others are being prepared by western delegations.

Possible Effects.

Regarded in a calm way, the action of congress is seen as tearing down the cordial feeling between Japan and the United States which has been developed in the last few years. The work of the Washington arms conference, hailed as the beginning of a new era in the far east, will be practically undone, it appears, from the reaction in Japan.

DEMOCRATIC RACE TENDS TO ENHANCE POWER OF 'BIG 4'

Instructed McAdoo Delegations Will Vest McAdoo With Absolute Power of Veto.

SUCCESS IN ELECTION
HANGS ON 3 STATES

Pivotal Commonwealths of New York, Indiana and Illinois Needed for Victory in November.

BY RAYMOND CLAPPER.

Washington, April 16.—Conditions with respect to the democratic presidential nomination are shaping up so that the decision is likely to lie within the hands of four men—Charles Murphy, of New York; Tom Taggart, of Indiana; George Brennan, of Illinois; and Joe Guffy, of Pennsylvania.

Leading candidates, notably William G. McAdoo, Al Smith and Senator Oscar Underwood, will have their influence, as will a number of other democratic leaders like James E. Cox, Clark Howell, Homer Cummings and Vance McCormick.

But the big four will make the final decision unless present conditions change. There are two reasons why such tremendous power gravitates to their hands this year.

McAdoo to Control Veto.

1. No candidate will go into the convention with the two-thirds vote necessary to nominate and McAdoo at least expects to have the veto power to prevent the nomination of any of his chief rivals—who happen to be Underwood and Smith at the moment. This forecasts a deadlock which will have to be broken by mutual agreement.

2. Three of the big four come from the strategic states of New York, Illinois and Indiana, which promise to be close and which must be carried in order for the democrats to win the coming election. Therefore it is essential that the candidate have the control—not merely formal—support of the democratic chiefs of those states.

"Big Four" Is Split.

At the present writing, there is no candidate who has the unanimous support of this group. Murphy is backing Al Smith. Taggart is pushing Ralston. Guffy is reported sympathetic to Underwood. Brennan is somewhat noncommittal although he has given some encouragement to Mayor Dever, of Chicago. One of these candidates may pull through, or the leaders may unite on an outsider.

The democratic situation is shifting constantly, but at the moment the principal candidacies can be summarized as follows:

Governor Al Smith has been thrown into a conspicuous position because of his victory over McAdoo in Wisconsin, attained without making an active campaign, and because of his endorsement by the New York democratic convention. His chief opposition comes from drys and klanisms.

McAdoo Out in Front.

Senator Underwood is conducting a quiet, carefully-organized campaign which is stronger than its absence of the spectacular might indicate. Like Smith, he is opposed by the drys and klanisms.

William G. McAdoo has recovered in a surprising manner from the jolt received by the disclosure of his connection with E. L. Doheny. His organization is working hard and he is accumulating the largest number of instructed delegates. He is out in front but still a long way from the nomination.

Senator Ralston is keeping out of sight, trusting in the ability of Tom Taggart to direct the lightning bolt his way. He has fewer delegates but less opposition than the others. Ralston still is regarded as having the best chance as a compromise candidate.

Judge Uses Gun To Carry Point At Polls, Claim

Quitman County Ordinary Shot Precinct Box Manager, Charge.

Enfauila, Ala., April 16.—Alonso Perkins, farmer of Quitman county, Ga., is in a hospital here with a bullet wound through the abdomen said to have been inflicted by Judge R. G. McElvyn, ordinary of Quitman county, Trouble arose between the two, according to reports, following Tuesday's election when Judge McElvyn was elected ordinary. Perkins was a manager at one of the precinct boxes.

DISPUTE OVER LIST
BLAMED FOR GUN PLAY.

Enfauila, Ala., April 16.—(Special.) Officials in Quitman county, Ga., were nominated as follows, it was announced there by election managers: W. C. Crumley, clerk of court; J. H. Hollingsworth, tax collector; A. R. Hammonds, tax receiver. A dispute said to have originated over striking names from the voters' list resulted in a shooting in which Alonso Perkins was shot in the abdomen. He will recover.

Atlanta Heiress Secretly Wed to Macon Man in 1923

MRS. MINTER WIMBERLY LAMAR

A secret romance of several months standing, hero and heroine of which are well known throughout the south, comes to light with the announcement that Miss Lillian Carter, Atlanta heiress, and sportsman, and Minter Wimberly Lamar, of Macon, son of a family illustrious in Georgia's history and southern social life, were wed last June.

The announcement, coming from Miami, Fla., brings with it the information that Mr. and Mrs. Lamar will reside in that city where Mr. Lamar now has large business interests.

But the big four will make the final decision unless present conditions change. There are two reasons why such tremendous power gravitates to their hands this year.

This Society Invites You to "Sit In" as a Member of Good Standing

The latest member of the "Society to Prevent Desirable Rooms from Remaining Unoccupied and Unproductive of Income" is Mr. Goodwin, of the Trust Company of Georgia.

It takes a long time to say the name of the organization, but it does not take very long for its members to get the results they are seeking, as Mr. Goodwin quickly discovered. The light housekeeping rooms are now rented and producing revenue.

You will sit up and take notice when you are told this society accepts you as a member of good standing as soon as you insert an ad in The Constitution classified columns.

"Had a great many replies." "Able to rent immediately to a reliable tenant." "Greatly pleased with results." Those are some of the "high signs" of this society.

The society's initiation fee is most modest, and to get the ad into The Constitution costs hardly an effort—just telephone

ROUND-THE-WORLD FLYER IS RESCUED FROM ALASKA BAY

Leak in Crank Case, Causing Loss of Fuel, Held Responsible for Their Descent.

RESCUE WAS EFFECTED
BY DESTROYER HULL

Army Aviators on Flight Ordered by Washington To Remain Hereafter in Sight of Each Other.

BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS.

Aboard the U. S. Destroyer Hull, Kanakak, Portage Bay, April 16.—(By Wire) to the Associated Press Via Bremerton, Wash., Naval Yard.) Major Frederick L. Martin, commander of the United States army globe flight, and his mechanic, Sergeant Alva Harvey, and the air cruiser Seattle, which was forced down yesterday en route from Seward to Chignik, were landed safely at Kanakak after being rescued today on the beach at Cape Igvak.

Major Martin and Sergeant Harvey were in excellent health tonight, although they suffered a little from exposure after being forced to remain in their plane all night.

The weather was unusually favorable today. The plane Seattle was not damaged on making the forced landing. A new engine will be placed in the machine at Kanakak.

Major Martin and his mechanic, Sergeant Alva Harvey, were found by the Hull in Portage bay, this side of Cape Igvak, where the Seattle disappeared yesterday while the four planes of the squadron were on their way to Chignik, Alaska, from Seward, Alaska, in a snow and windstorm characteristic of the region.

A leak in its crank case, causing waste of fuel, forced Major Martin to alight in Portage bay, according to the report.

AVIATORS MUST KEEP IN SIGHT EACH OTHER.

Washington, April 16.—The army aviators making the world flight were sent orders today to remain within sight of each other in flights. The orders were dispatched by Major General Patrick, chief of the army air service, upon direction of Major General Hines, deputy chief of staff, as a result of the forced descent in Portage bay of Major Frederick L. Martin.

BRITISH WORLD FLYER LANDS NEAR ATHENS.

Athens, April 16.—A. S. N. MacLaren, British round the world flyer, arrived at Old Phaleron Wednesday in his plane, "The Venture," after flying from Corfu, where he was held up for several weeks awaiting spare parts for his machine.

The men arrived here in a roadster, loaded down with baggage bearing foreign labels, the baggage containing the finest kind of wearing apparel.

Papers found in the baggage revealed the alias of Edwards, the man who had been held up in London, and who was wanted in Idaho.

The police are holding the two men on technical charges of loitering.

At midnight a telegram was received from the chief of police at Montreal, province of Ontario, Canada, asking that the man be held for that city.

No details of the Canadian charges were contained in the message.

A later message received from William J. Henderson, of the Montreal police department, requested the police to hold Edward Andreau, said to be the man who gave the name of Brockway, who claims to be from London, and whom the Canadian officers learned was under surveillance here. A charge of obtaining money under false pretenses is said to be against him in the Canadian city.

The police found evidence in the baggage that the man had been in London, Ont., and in fact most of the states of the Union.

FLIGHT TO AUSTRALIA
PLANNED NEXT YEAR.

Washington, April 16.—The navy department has under consideration a plan to send the entire American fleet on a cruise to Australia next year, it was learned here Wednesday.

Under the suggested plan, the fleet would be concentrated at Hawaii and then make the cruise across the Pacific. The plan, it was said, has been under consideration for some time.

CROSS HOT SANDS

Seven Atlantans Are Initiated at Athens Ceremonial—Hundreds Attend Pilgrimage.

Athens, Ga., April 16.—(Special.) Yaara temple's pilgrimage to the oasis of Athens ended tonight with a dance at the Georgian hotel, after Shriners had experienced one of its liveliest days in Georgia. More than 1,500 Shriners from Atlanta and other cities of this section and hundreds of visitors were here for the events. Potentate Charles A. Bowen, of Atlanta, was escorted to Athens by the largest caravan that ever left Atlanta.

The hot sands of the Athens desert were crossed by 26 neophytes during the day and a barbecue, patrol drill, band, and a variety of other features featured the program. unrestricted disposal over the whole rich territory within the boundaries set by the treaty of Versailles," if the amounts demanded by the experts terms are to be achieved.

The chancellor suggested that fulfillment of the report would be endangered if "the immediate threat of disturbing interference continues to exist—whatever may be the form the threats take."

To Grant Guarantees.

2. "Oppressive and peremptory guarantees for the fulfillment of the plan's provisions are demanded from Germany, and they will be granted," Marx said, adding, "hence I deem it not improper if Germany wants to see that it will not be threatened with military interventions which, even with the best of intentions of fulfillment, would form a serious hindrance to an attempt to convert the plan into deeds."

The chancellor voiced marked approval of the main lines of the report, however, in discussing the experts' work.

No Political Motive.

"The report of the experts' committee, in which, as the German nation thankfully recognized, American representatives played so prominent a part, is undoubtedly the most promising attempt to solve the reparations problem which has hitherto been undertaken by the powers which signed the Versailles treaty," Marx said.

"Its essential merit consists in excluding all political motivation and considering, with pure, sober business-like method, the question of Germany's capacity as well as that of adjusting indispensable requirements of German economy."

Marx said that even if the report had been concerned with only immediate temporary regulation of the reparations problem during the period in which Germany was returning to normalcy its effect in removing tension from the monetary situation would have been "a blessing to Europe and the world."

Dislikes Ruhr Clause.

"I welcome the fact that the experts adopted the first requisite feature of German deliveries, namely the full restoration of German sovereignty in economic and fiscal matters," he declared.

Marx did not appear to be entirely satisfied on the question of the French occupation of the Ruhr, however.

"Even though I quite comprehend the embarrassing situation in which the experts were placed in this matter I would like to have seen more emphasis placed on the part of the experts' report which dealt with the continued presence of bodies of troops in the Ruhr," the chancellor said.

SLAYER IS SILENT ON DENIAL OF PLEA

J. B. Satterfield, under sentence to die for the murder of his brother-in-law, R. H. Hart, Wednesday stoically received news that the Georgia prison commission had refused to recommend clemency in his case. He was subsequently taken to the cell in Fulton tower, and declined to comment on the action of the commission.

Satterfield, who is sentenced to hang on April 25, has but one hour left now, in a direct appeal to the governor, who has the power to commute the sentence if he sees fit.

Clifford Walker stated Wednesday afternoon that he planned to examine the record in the case with utmost care and only make his decision known after he had considered it from every angle.

Attorney Murphy Holloway, representing Satterfield, stated Wednesday that he expected to submit the case to the governor on the present record, although unverified reports stated that he would ask for a respite and the appointment of a lunacy commission to examine Satterfield's mental condition.

The prison commission declared that the evidence indicated Satterfield killed Hart because he did not get a small amount of property left by Mrs. Satterfield and that there was no proof Satterfield was not in his right mind at the time of the slaying.

Satterfield killed Hart during Christmas week, 1921, after chasing him from the Hart residence on Trinity avenue to a soda stand at the corner of Trinity and Whitehall, according to evidence in the trial. Satterfield shot him in the store. Satterfield escaped and was apprehended in California over a year later. He was brought back to Atlanta and convicted in Fulton superior court, escaping recently and being recaptured the following day. The sentence was upheld by the supreme court on a plea for new trial.

Holloway's Statement.

Late Wednesday night Attorney Holloway gave out the following statement:

It is my intention to seek an immediate hearing before Governor Walker, basing my claim for clemency for Satterfield upon the record growing out of the trial. His disturbed and distorted mental condition was brought about by his discovery that his baby girl, Elsie, after having been taken away from him through the medium of guardianship proceedings, was married by her own blood uncle, R. H. Hart, and her aunt, Mrs. Stuckey, and while a ward under these proceedings and in the home of Mrs. Stuckey, was subjected to such environment and surroundings that brought her to the level of a convicted social outcast, who while thus detained from her father became a victim of the most vicious, loathsome disease known to the medical profession.

This, the condemned man says, was the condition of his little girl when she was restored to him; and these conditions, it has and will be contended in the closing chapter of this case, brought Satterfield to mental disorder and irresponsibility that existed at the time of the assassination of Hart.

I have made no plans in my fight to save this man's life beyond a hearing before the governor, which will be the next step.

LIONS RAISE FUND TO AID PRINCESS WHO SOUGHT DEATH

Embarrassing financial difficulties which Monday night led Mrs. Jean Henson, Hawaiian singer and dancer, known professionally as Princess Eli Elima, to attempt suicide because she was unable to meet a hotel bill, were considerably relieved Tuesday by the Lions' club, which made a substantial contribution.

Shortly after coming to Atlanta to take up her professional career, Mrs. Henson appeared before the Lions' club. George M. Napier, attorney general of Georgia, was principal speaker at the weekly luncheon of the club, speaking on "Respect for Law." He read statistics compiled by various bar associations showing the high crime rate of the United States in comparison with other countries.

Robert Troy, of the Junior Chamber of Commerce, described Atlanta's new baseball plant as one of the best in the minor leagues and easily the greatest in the south, urging members of the Lions' club to attend the opening game this afternoon at Spiller's field.

Clarence Aldred rendered several vocal selections, accompanied by Paul Hubbard on the piano.

FIGHT RESULTS IN BROKEN JAW FOR I. P. TURNER

With a fractured skull and jaw, I. P. Turner, of 36 Curran avenue, Wednesday night hovered between life and death at Grady hospital, the result of a fight Tuesday night with W. T. Byerly, 25, of 562 Marietta street, who was arrested on charges of assault with intent to kill. Byerly was released on $500 bond.

A full report had not been filed on the case late Wednesday night, but it is stated that the men engaged in an argument Tuesday night on Marietta street near North avenue. Byerly told police that he struck Turner with his fist, knocking him down, and that if Turner's jaw was broken, it was a result of the blow. It is thought that the man suffered a fractured skull when his head struck the pavement.

Surgeon attending Turner states that while his condition is serious his injuries are not expected to prove fatal.

ATLANTAN AWARDED FOREIGN SCHOLARSHIP

New York, April 16.—The American-Scandinavian foundation announced tonight the names of 16 Americans who have been awarded the foundation's $1,000 fellowships for 1924-25 for study in the Scandinavian countries. One hundred seventy-five men and women were nominated by 62 colleges and universities. They include Charles W. Williams, Atlanta.

Mr. Williams could not be located in Atlanta Wednesday night.

Open Shop Movement Hit In Labor Convention Here

Advocates of the open shop movement have abandoned their fight with that particular weapon against organized labor in the south and have adopted a system of "industrial spies" in an effort to break down labor unions, was the statement made Wednesday afternoon on the floor of the Georgia Federation of Labor by William Pollard, of Atlanta, prominent member of the electrical workers. Mr. Pollard has just returned from New Orleans where he conducted a strike of his union against the public utility corporation of the Crescent City.

Mr. Pollard's address was in a business meeting Wednesday afternoon following the formal opening of the twenty-sixth annual convention of the Georgia Federation of Labor. Resolutions endorsing Major George L. Berry for the vice presidency of the democratic ticket were adopted during the meeting.

"Open-shoppers," said Mr. Pollard, "have abandoned their fight against that particular weapon against organized labor in the south and have adopted a system of 'industrial spies' in an effort to break down labor unions, was the statement made Wednesday afternoon on the floor of the Georgia Federation of Labor by William Pollard, of Atlanta, prominent member of the electrical workers. Mr. Pollard has just returned from New Orleans where he conducted a strike of his union against the public utility corporation of the Crescent City."

Another important matter was a privileged resolution introduced by Carl Karston, of the Berry Boosters' club, calling upon state labor forces to endorse the candidacy of George L. Berry, president of the International Printing Pressmen's Union, for vice president of the United States on the democratic ticket. This resolution was adopted without a dissenting word.

Text of Resolution.

The resolution follows:

Whereas, Major George L. Berry, past vice commander of the American Legion, and president of the Printing Pressmen's Union, of North America, is now an active candidate for the vice presidency on the national democratic ticket, and

Whereas, Ex-service men and organized labor everywhere is active in the interest of Brother Berry in the promotion of his candidacy, and

Whereas, The qualities and the ability possessed by Brother Berry stamp him as an outstanding figure and a man greatly to be desired in the office to which he aspires, therefore be it

Resolved, That the Georgia Federation of Labor, in twenty-sixth annual convention assembled, pledge its full and unqualified support to Major Berry, and request all members of organized labor and their friends throughout the state to exert every legitimate influence to the end that the delegates to the democratic national convention be instructed for Major George L. Berry for vice president.

The address of welcome delivered by Governor Walker congratulated labor upon the "great progress that has been made by the organizations and by labor as a whole in the state."

Mayor Sims declared that the union in Atlanta had done much toward building up the city.

President C. W. Cunningham welcomed the delegates in an enthusiastic talk. In responding to addresses welcoming delegates to the Gate City of the South, President Gramling, of the state organization, delivered an interesting address.

In making his annual report President Gramling recited the activities of the labor federation for the past year under his direction and several interesting recommendations were included.

A report of Vice President Emmett L. Quinn recommended that the garnishment law of Georgia be amended to make it impossible for workingman's salary to be attached until judgment had been obtained in court, and also recommended that laws be changed in such manner as to prohibit titles to clothing being retained by credit changes in the household laws, making it possible to receive the benefits of the law without making applications, as at present.

Reports were referred to the committee on officers' reports, which will bring in its findings probably today.

Mrs. Mary Sewell, prominent among leaders of the Garment Workers' union and enthusiastic supporter of the Atlanta Labor League, called attention to the exhibit of label-bearing, union-made goods at the Labor Temple.

The convention adjourned at 5 o'clock Wednesday afternoon, the presiding officer announcing that the morning session Thursday will begin at 9 o'clock. It was also announced that a banquet will be given to delegates Thursday evening at the Ansley hotel where a number of prominent state and municipal officers and outstanding citizens will meet the visiting labor people of the state. A dance will be given Friday night in the Labor Temple.

Lauds School Plan.

During the afternoon session the floor of the convention was given to A. J. Smith, of Valdosta, who presented the program of the Wilson Memorial boys' school, which is to be erected at Valdosta. Mr. Smith presented the memorial movement in a highly interesting manner, asking for the endorsement of the state federation. This school, he declared, is to cost in the neighborhood of $1,000,000.

Francis J. Clarke, of the Shoemakers' International union, was present and made a brief talk about labor conditions in America.

A large amount of business is before the labor convention and with the rules committee setting Thursday noon for hearing resolutions, it is expected that many important questions will be entered into today.

The Servant in the House

The difference between a good servant and a poor one is this: one serves you and you serve the other. And that's precisely the difference between good coffee and poor coffee. Serving inferior coffee is poor service to yourself and to your family.

Good coffee is a servant in the house that never disappoints you. But when old mother nature created coffee berries she made some good and some poor. And too many serve the poor coffee.

White House Coffee is "the servant in the house" of folks who will not have any coffee but the very best. White House Coffee has been giving the finest coffee service for over thirty years. And it makes you mighty proud, as you pour the hot, delicious coffee for your family, that you're giving them the finest coffee you can buy at any price.

Let White House Coffee serve you. It comes to you double-sealed and double-packed in the simple yet scientific White House container. Buy a pound today.

Be sure the "White House" is on every label. 1, 3 and 5-lb. packages only.

PEACHTREE ARCADE SCENE OF FESTIVAL

The spring festival now on in full blast at the Peachtree Arcade has brought thousands of people to this popular shopping place during the last few days, and every indication points to record breaking crowds the last three days of the week, according to statements Wednesday of Arcade merchants.

Bargains in a great variety of merchandise, demonstrations of various kinds and musical entertainment have combined to attract not only the regular shoppers to the Arcade, but thousands of new people as well, including many out-of-town buyers.

The festival is staged by the Arcade Cooperative association, an organization of Arcade merchants who have combined to promote a higher standard of merchandising and to render to the public the best word in service, it is pointed out.

The interior of the big Arcade building is a veritable peach orchard with hundreds of peach trees in full bloom, with a canopy of Japanese lanterns swung overhead. Decorations for the occasion are more elaborate than have ever before been attempted for any occasion and the public has been charmed with the beauty of effect that has been attained.

Some of the features for the week have been musical programs and singing by the well known Georgia Railway & Power company quartet. Other interesting events have been the window display contest in which all Arcade merchants competed, and the special demonstration of typewriting by music, staged by students of Draughton's Business college.

It is the purpose of the Arcade Cooperative association to stage both a spring and fall festival annually and the success of the present one is ample assurance that the plan will be carried out, it is stated.

METHODS TO HALT WEEVIL RAVAGES ARE INAUGURATED

Steps to standardize methods of experimentation in boll weevil control were inaugurated at a meeting of federal and state entomologists in the office of J. N. Harper, president of the Association of Southern Agricultural Workers, on Tuesday. W. E. Hinds, state entomologist of Louisiana, presided. He stated that, in his opinion, more important work will be done this year than ever before and believes rapid progress is being made in determining the most effective means of overcoming the weevil.

Those who attended the meeting included Dr. W. R. Dodson, chairman of cotton council, Baton Rouge, La.; Dr. R. R. Coad, chief in charge boll weevil investigations, Tallahassee, Fla.; Professor J. C. Gaines, assistant of Dr. Coad; Dr. W. E. Hinds, Baton Rouge, La.; J. N. Harper, president Association Southern Agricultural Workers and director soil improvement committee, Atlanta, Ga.; C. A. Whittle and David D. Long, of Mr. Harper's organization; Professor R. P. Bledsoe, Georgia experiment station; Professor Clay Lyle, A. and E. college, Starkville, Miss.; Professor C. P. Blackwell, Clemson, college; Professor T. L. Thomas, entomologist, A. and E. college, College Station, Texas.

Following the business session, 200 tickets for the Atlanta-Chatanooga game, which will open the season in the new ball park this afternoon, will be distributed. The junior chamber is sponsoring the opening-day game, and efforts are being made to get out a larger crowd than that which broke the league record in 1923.

Removal of Hellenic Headquarters Here Is Sought by Poulos

J. A. Poulos, prominent Greek-American citizen of Atlanta and founder of the American-Hellenic Educational and Progressive association, left the city Wednesday for Philadelphia, where he will take charge of the national organization department of the association.

Mr. Poulos said Wednesday that he would work toward having the national headquarters of the association returned to Atlanta from Philadelphia, where it was removed a year ago. He declares it has been proved that the work can better be carried on from this city.

On his way north, Mr. Poulos will stop in Charlotte, N. C., to address the chapter there of the national organization, which now numbers almost 10,000 members in its 54 chapters, located in almost every state of the union.

The convention of the association was held in Atlanta in October, 1913, and will be held in New York at a date this summer to be announced later.

KENNEY SETS RECORDS FOR REGISTER SALES

Atlanta's remarkable business activity during the first three months of 1924 finds itself clearly illustrated in the achievement of J. S. Kenney, salesman for the National Cash Register company, who has just won high honors in his organization for work done in this city.

Owing to the great amount of trade being done in Atlanta, especially cash trade, Mr. Kenney has been able to do in three months what his company designed for him to do in the twelve months of the current year—that is, sell $300,000 worth of cash registers. This accomplishment gives Mr. Kenney membership in the "1,200 Point club" and he is the first of the immense sales organization of the cash register concern throughout the world who has attained that pinnacle of salesmanship during 1924. Mr. Kenney attributes the ease with which he reached his quota to the splendid business conditions in Atlanta—and throughout Georgia and the south, for the prosperity of the wide territory undoubtedly has its influence on Atlanta, he said.

This is the first time in the history of the organization that Georgia, or the south, has taken this sales leadership, it is pointed out. In previous years, the first membership in the "1,200 Point club" has gone to some other section, usually to some western state, chiefly California and the Pacific slope.

For his excellent record, Mr. Kenney will be given a free trip to California this fall. He will also be featured in a full-page spread in the next issue of the trade periodical of the National Cash Register company. Atlanta, too, and the excellent commercial and industrial conditions which made Mr. Kenney's record possible, will be stressed in the publicity given his achievement.

IRE OF CITIZENS STIRRED BY PLAN FOR COAL YARDS

Boulevard park residents were called Wednesday to attend an indignation meeting at the Virginia Avenue school at 8 o'clock Saturday night to protest against the proposed establishment of a coal yard between the park residence development and the boundary of Piedmont park.

Mrs. George N. Harris, one of the residents whose home extends to the line of the proposed coal yard, was most active in arranging the meeting. She asserted that the territory along the belt line railroad, which skirts the park on that end, had been zoned from a residence to industrial district last July without the knowledge of a majority of residents of the section.

The Georgia public service commission is scheduled to hear next Monday a petition for establishing additional track facilities in the territory against which the ire of householders is aimed. The protest at the Saturday meeting is to be carried to members of the commission, Mrs. Harris said, and an effort is to be made to have the city planning commission re-zone the disputed strip of land for residence purposes.

An Unusual Opportunity to Secure a Valuable Sales Franchise

WE are ready to award exclusive territorial distribution rights for the Brayco Projector which in importance and sales possibilities rivals the phonograph and the radio.

This startling invention has already become a tremendous force in the advancement of Visual Education. It releases for entertainment and education millions of splendid pictures until now imprisoned in motion picture films.

Sales possibilities are almost unlimited; the appeal universal. Sold through at least ten different classes of retail stores, by mail and personal salesmanship. The unit selling price is $25. Sales of films for use with Brayco furnish a source of continuous profit and increasing volume.

The manufacturers will support distributors with national advertising and aggressive, co-operative sales effort.

Negotiations will be opened at once with a man, or sales organization, able to furnish satisfactory proof of ability, character and the necessary financial resources. Letters requesting details will be promptly answered, but interested parties who can qualify should wire for particulars today.

Looking Years Ahead To Be Ready to Serve

THE enormous additions to be made to the telephone system this year must be made to fit the plans of the future.

To do this economically and make the additions of the greatest service value, the engineers have already planned the work for a period of five years in the future.

Gross additions to the telephone plant of this Company, costing not less than $37,700,000 will be required during the next five years.

During this period it is estimated that there will be a net gain of 127,000 new telephones.

The money for this undertaking must be secured from investors who are willing to put their money in the telephone business in the South. They will not supply it unless they are assured of an annual net return which they consider reasonable.

Your state's share and your city's share in this rapid expansion of the telephone system is of great importance. A proper understanding of our problems and friendly co-operation on your part are necessary to the successful accomplishment of such a gigantic task.

STRUCK BY AUTO WOMAN IS INJURED

Mrs. W. W. Monk, of 228 North Jackson street, suffered minor injuries early Wednesday night when struck by a car driven by an unknown man, who sped away following the accident, according to witnesses. It was stated at police headquarters that the number of the automobile has been obtained and Detectives Acree, Newton and Maddox are conducting a search for the driver.

Mrs. Monk alighted from an outboard West Peachtree street car at West Peachtree street and West Peachtree place, and walked around the rear of the car, when the automobile, going in the opposite direction, sped past, the fender knocking the woman to the pavement, it is said.

Mrs. Monk was taken to Davis-Fischer hospital in the ambulance of H. M. Patterson & Son, and physicians say her condition is not dangerous, although she suffered severe bruises about the head and back.

Lee Nipper, of 11 Garnett street, who was injured Wednesday afternoon when he fell from a ladder upon which he was working at Garnett and Forsyth streets, was able to return home after his broken leg was placed in a cast by surgeons at Grady hospital.

The condition of Mr. and Mrs. L. J. Wood and Mr. and Mrs. Charles Joiner, of Smyrna, who were injured Tuesday night as their auto was struck by a street car that jumped the tracks in Marietta street, was reported Wednesday as being favorable. The machine, which belonged to Wood, was parked in Marietta street. Wood leaped to safety, escaping with minor cuts and bruises. The car was wrecked.

WHY CALIFORNIANS FAVOR JAP EXCLUSION

class, other things will follow immediately. They say that Japan will at once demand that being on the same basis as European nations with regard to immigration, she should also be put on the same basis as European nations with regard to naturalization, voting, land-owning and the other rights of citizens.

Repayment to Californians. To admit this would be most repugnant to the Californians, because California has passed several specific state statutes denying to the Japanese the right to own land, denying them equal rights in the schools, and otherwise treating them on a different basis from Europeans. Californians are at all times alarmed lest the federal government do something which would impair the validity of these local statutes. They fear that putting Japan on the same basis as European nations with regard to naturalization would be followed by demands from Japan to be put on the same basis as European nations with respect to everything else. They fear that Japan would bring pressure to bear on the federal government, and that the federal government might sometime do something rendering invalid the California state statutes about schools and land-owning.

The "Gentlemen's Agreement"

When you ask California spokesmen why they object to going on with the "gentlemen's agreement," and whether it has worked satisfactorily, they answer emphatically that it has not. The essence of the gentlemen's agreement is that America, under Roosevelt in 1908, undertook not to pass any exclusion laws against the Japanese; and the Japanese government undertook in return to keep the Japanese out of California by refusing to give passports to any Japanese except certain specified classes. One of these excepted classes to which Japan reserved the right to give passports was the wives and other close relatives of Japanese who were already in California preceding the gentlemen's agreement. The Californians now claim that under the role of "picture brides" the Japanese government is placing in the state as many as 2,000 Japanese a year to what are known as "picture brides." What a "picture bride" is, was described by Senator Shortridge, of California, in a speech in the current debate, in language which one hesitates in the interest of good feeling to quote entire, but of which the following sentences express merely the milder portion of what Senator Shortridge said:

What "Picture Brides" Are. "The young Japanese laborer in California, yearning to perpetuate himself, sought a fair maiden in Japan, and thus avoiding the distress of the expense of travel, what heaven had put apart, man joined together, for the maidens came in their hundreds across the peaceful Pacific, landed on the wharf at San Francisco, were there met, greeted and embraced by their future husbands."

According to the Californians, the result of the "picture bride" system plus the high birth rate of the Japanese, has resulted in the Japanese population of California increasing much faster, relatively, than the white population. It has more than doubled since the gentlemen's agreement went into effect. The "picture bride" institution was ended in 1923, eleven years after the original Japanese agreement, by a supplemental diplomatic arrangement between the two countries.

Is Situation Made Worse? While a person with the most just-cial mind is impressed by the feeling of real alarm and irritation which Californians express, nevertheless, one is compelled to wonder whether California will not be worse off under the rigid exclusion act now adopted than it was under the gentlemen's agreement. A part of the gentlemen's agreement provided that Japan undertake to control her emigrants to go to Mexico in large numbers without control. If large numbers of Japanese do come to Mexico, it will be next to impossible for California or the United States to prevent them from coming across the line into our own country. Throughout all the debates on immigration, it has been admitted by our officials that we have practically no effective supervision of the line between Mexico and the United States, and that very large numbers of aliens from every country, not admissible through regular channels, go first to Mexico and thereafter slip across the line at night.

What Ambassador Meant.

The Japanese ambassador, in the letter that created all this uproar, said that the passing of the exclusion act and the ending of the gentlemen's agreement might have "grave consequences." This phrase was much emphasized by the Japanese ambassador, Senator Moses, who has had ambassadorial experience, said that "grave consequences" has a definite meaning which every diplomat understands. Other senators took the same view. The implication was that by this phrase the Japanese government meant to make what was little, if any, short of a threat of war. It is possible to dismiss this as having not actually been intended by the Japanese government, because the context does not suggest that the ambassador meant anything so serious. There are wholly different "grave consequences" that might follow. One of the "grave consequences" might be a wholesale Japanese colonization of Mexico, which we could not prevent, but which we would certainly look upon as a "grave consequence."

WARRANT CHARGING BIGAMY WITHDRAWN

Closing the last chapter of the marital difficulties between himself and his wife, Walter Strickland, of 121 Whitehall street, withdrew his warrant charging Mrs. Florence Strickland with bigamy Wednesday in municipal court. On April 12 Mrs. Strickland swore out a peace warrant against Strickland, later dismissing it and paying court costs after a reconciliation. Hostilities being renewed, the bigamy warrant was taken out, only to be in turn dismissed by the husband. Strickland said he had made a mistake.

City's Clean-Up Program Gets Under Full Headway

T. Cliff Perkins and J. M. Cochran, Kiwanis club representatives, in the "Clean-up, Paint-up, Keep-up" campaign, start the city's battalion of painters to work repainting the city auditorium-armory in preparation for grand opera.

Action toward a city-wide exposition of Atlanta-made goods during grand opera week, utilizing all available vacant stores in the business district, and toward making the clean-up campaign a permanent and continuous movement in Atlanta was taken Wednesday afternoon at the first luncheon conference of the general advisory committee of the "Clean-Up, Paint-Up, Keep-Up Campaign" in the Pine room of the Ansley hotel.

Thirty-three representatives of as many active civic organizations participating in the "spotless Atlanta" movement reported tremendous progress made during the first two days of the campaign, which opened Monday, and voiced confidence that Easter Sunday and grand opera week will find Atlanta in the cleanest and most beautiful condition as to homes, schools, streets and public and business buildings that it has boasted since it became a large city.

A detachment of amateur painters from the Atlanta Kiwanis club, headed by T. Cliff Perkins and J. M. Cochran, the club's representatives on the general committee, went to the city auditorium following the luncheon conference of the general advisory committee of the "Clean-Up, Paint-Up, Keep-Up Campaign" in the Pine room of the Ansley hotel.

Plans for installing displays of Atlanta-manufactured goods in vacant store rooms for a city-wide "Atlanta-made exposition" during grand opera week were referred to a committee composed of Miss Caroline Thomas, of the Advertising club; Ray Bergen, of the Retail Food Dealers' association; Kenneth S. Keyes, of the Merchants' & Manufacturers' association; and George M. Brown, Jr., of the Atlanta Real Estate board, for conference with property owners and renting agents in charge of empty store rooms.

The committee will meet at the call of Mr. Brown, probably today, to negotiate with large business property owners and renting agents for the use of vacant downtown stores as display booths for Atlanta products during the week when the largest annual influx of visitors sweeps over the city. The exhibitor, according to the tentative plan, would be subject to removal on 24-hour notice in case the store occupied was rented during the week and, in exchange for the privilege of using the room, would guarantee to clean it up thoroughly and leave it in spotless condition when the "exposition" closes.

The exposition plan, according to its originators, will serve the double purpose of increasing the appearance of business activity in Atlanta during the week by presenting a business district without a single vacant store and at the same time to increase Atlanta's prestige as a commercial and manufacturing center by giving prominent display to the immense variety of wares of all kinds manufactured here.

Text of Resolution. The resolution pledging support to the plan for a permanent clean-up campaign in Atlanta, adopted by unanimous vote of 30 committee members representing 21 different civic and social organizations, follows: "Whereas, A smartly groomed appearance is one of the strongest inducements a city can offer to newcomers and visitors and

"Whereas, Strictest attention to community hygiene and sanitation is one of the strongest safeguards a city can offer to the lives and health of its residents; therefore, be it resolved, by the members of the general advisory committee of the 1924 Clean-Up Campaign, representing individually the active civic organizations of Atlanta, That we pledge our efforts toward having a permanent clean-up campaign adopted as one of the features of our civic work and a permanent clean-up campaign committee appointed from each of our organizations to work in cooperation as a joint committee to keep Atlanta clean-up and painted up for all time to come."

W. V. Davis presided as chairman with R. J. Davidson as acting secretary and Mrs. T. T. Stevens, vice chairman and president of the Atlanta Federation of Women's Clubs, at the "clean-up" luncheon conference Wednesday.

Members Present. Members of the general committee in attendance were: Mrs. Charles P. Rice, Atlanta chapter D. A. R.; Mrs. Earl F. Scott, Atlanta chapter U. D. C.; Mrs. Hugu M. Dorsey, Peachtree Garden club; Arthur L. May, Atlanta lodge of Elks; Mrs. J. P. Billings, Atlanta Women's club; Grier Martin, Atlanta Paint club; Willis A. Sutton, public school superintendent; George West, Ninth Ward Civic league; James M. Cochran, Kiwanis club; Prof. Floyd Fields, of Georgia Tech, representing colleges and universities; Miss Caroline Thomas, Atlanta Advertising club; R. V. Bergen, Retail Food Dealers' association; Mrs. W. F. Dykes, Federation of Women's Clubs; George Tedger, Atlanta club; Mrs. E. D. McDonald, president Parent-Teacher council; Mrs. Stacy E. Hill, Atlanta Humane society; Joseph B. Wolf, Lions' club; Mrs. E. E. Carnes, White's club; Mrs. George B. Harris, Boulevard Park Civic league; Miss Doris S. Hough, regional director Girl Scouts; Mrs. J. S. Burgess, Third Ward Civic club; and William F. Slaton, Parent-Teacher association; H. G. Hastings, chairman extension department Chamber of Commerce; Miss Mary Dickinson, Atlanta Anti-Tuberculosis society; and Fifth District Federation of Women's clubs; Mrs. B. M. Bowkin, women's division, Chamber of Commerce; R. D. Cole III, Junior Chamber of Commerce; P. P. Campbell, Argentine Post No. 1, American Legion; Mrs. J. E. Somerville, Federation of Jewish Women's Organizations; Mrs. G. H. Howard, West End club.

Public Invited To Tour Orchards In Apple Section

Apple trees are in full bloom in north Georgia, and the man or woman who has not visited the orchards of Habersham or Rabun counties at this time of the year, has missed seeing one of the most beautiful sights of nature.

The Consolidated Apple Growers' Exchange and the Habersham club, of Cornelia, have extended a special invitation to Atlantans and Georgians to visit the orchards during the coming week-end. They state that by Saturday the trees will be in full glory of their spring radiance of bloom and will continue at their best through Monday of next week.

No pagan or extensive entertainment program has been found feasible this year in the apple-growing regions. But none is needed, according to those who have seen the bloom-covered orchards in years past.

Both of the organizations mentioned above have made special arrangements to give every attention to visitors who can arrange to visit their section of the state during the coming week-end. While many, of course, will seize the opportunity to drive through the country Sunday, the exchange and the club will gladly furnish cars to all who come by train, and will see that they are driven through the orchards. All who anticipate making the trip—and there will undoubtedly be many thousands to do so—are asked to communicate with either organization at Cornelia in order that every advance arrangement for their comfort may be made.

Weather Prophet Relaxes Rules For First Game

C. F. von Herrmann, official weatherman for this section, is frankly uncertain whether Atlanta is going to be allowed to witness the opening game of the baseball season today without rain. Official predictions for Thursday are for "showers and cooler," but Mr. von Herrmann, possibly because he doesn't want to seem a spoilsport, tempered this with the statement that there is a chance the showers will all be over by noon.

After a considerable rise in temperature Wednesday night, moderate cooler weather is on the schedule for Thursday. Other than this, however, there is no change in temperature of noticeable degree in store.

Light rain was reported on Wednesday at numerous places throughout the central valley and the south-east. The precipitation was generally light. A marked area of warm weather covers the central Mississippi valley and it remains decidedly cold in the northwest.

Temperatures in Atlanta Wednesday afternoon were close to 80 degrees, and at 7 o'clock Wednesday morning were recorded as 56 degrees.

of Yaarba temple, led by Captain Van de Vere. Following the patrol came the Chanters, of which Noble Frank Cunliffe is director, with Walter Aichele, accompanist.

Directly behind the Chanters came the degree team and behind them hundreds of Shriners followed in automobiles filled with visiting women. Bringing up the extreme rear were the 26 neophytes who bore the brunt of Wednesday's battle. Several of these were from Athens while the others were from various other cities of Georgia.

Barbecue Served. After the parade the visiting Shriners and their wives and visiting ladies and members of the Athens Rotary and Kiwanis clubs were entertained at a barbecue at the warehouse of Hardeman & Phinizy.

At 3 o'clock the ceremonial began at the Colonial theater, when the neophytes received the "hot sands." A tremendous crowd witnessed the Shrine vaudeville at the Colonial theater.

the lack of law enforcement. And in that problem the most outstanding subdivision is the hip-pocket flask.

Chief Jett is to be commended for his crusade against the bootleg pedestrian, who walks around with his clothes bulging with small flasks of the "concoction that kills," as well as the bootleg motorist who furnishes the base of supply.

BALL SEASON OPENS.

The cry of "Atta boy, Bill, put it right down the groove and let 'im hit it," or "put him, he's blind as a bat," will be sweet music to the ears of thousands today, for—

Baseball has started in Atlanta.

"Be there a man with soul so dead," could be written in a parody to apply to the great American game, for there is no sport that has such a nationwide appeal.

Business men will be made over, commencing today; tired professional men will get that respite from heavy problems; the sportsman will be in his prime; and the American, the Atlanta as a whole, will rejoice.

And today, particularly of all days, Atlanta's pride and spirit is called to the test. The cup which is to grace the meetings of the team in the city where the greatest number of men turn out to see the opening game must come to Atlanta.

Every man, woman and child who boasts of that undying spirit which has put Atlanta in the fore in other instances, must not fail today.

Whether you be a baseball fan or not, let a little germ of sportsmanship settle in your being today, and go out and help swell the attendance at the game.

Jack Corbett has given us a team, of which Atlanta may be proud; and Atlanta, all, let's turn out with the tried and true Atlanta spirit.

TARIFF AND THE FARMER.

The national atmosphere seems to be heavily charged with politics at this time.

According to Washington dispatches reaching the capital from the west indicate that the sentiment favoring a third party is confined almost wholly to sections which normally are republican and that it is not likely to be checked or changed by the nomination of President Coolidge even if he has a westerner for his running mate.

And, of course, there is no chance of a radical like La Follette being nominated by an old guard convention.

If a third party fails to present to these disgruntled republicans an opportunity to register their displeasure with the Harding-Coolidge administration, the reports further reveal, they will either remain away from the polls or support the democratic presidential nominee.

Western agricultural producers who have heretofore credited to republican tariffs the relative prosperity they have experienced have a wholly different view of "protection" after a three years' demonstration of its futility for them. Far from their former confidence in a tariff, the farmers of the west, and particularly the thousands who grow wheat, are charging it with partial responsibility for their distress.

The recent addition of 12 cents to the previous duty of 30 cents a bushel on wheat was received with a leer in most of the states where that grain is the principal crop or an important product. Out in Nebraska the experience of a farmer who wanted to buy a disc harrow, recently, has found its way into print and is going the rounds of the metropolitan and rural press.

This farmer wanted a new harrow to prepare his land for oats. He asked the price of the machine and found that it would cost him the yield of a ten-acre field of oats. Then he began to seek an explanation of the disparity between the price of his products and the cost of the implements he needed in the cultivation and harvesting of his crops.

What that farmer discovered was that the harrow and most of his other machinery and tools are manufactured of steel and iron on which there is real, effective "protection"—the sort that can be collected in the selling price. He learned also—from the newspapers which told his story—that the United States Steel corporation had just reported, through Judge Gary, chairman of its board of directors, that 1923 was for it a very prosperous year. This corporation had profits in 1923 sufficient to pay 7 per cent on its preferred stock and $16.43 a share on its common stock.

This little study of the tariff is typical of the inquiry the farmers are making elsewhere in the northwest. What they learn is discrediting the republican tariff and destroying the republican chances in that region.

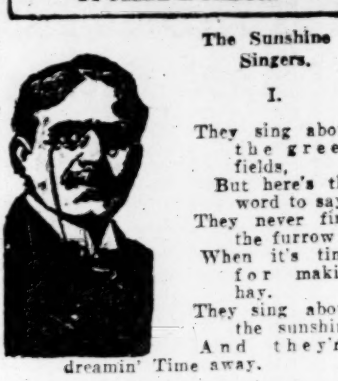

The picnic train, so long side-tracked, is ready now to run into a storm of blossoms.

The Sunshine Singers.

I.
They sing about the green fields.
But here's the word to say:
They never find the furrow.
When it's time for makin' hay.
They sing about the sunshine
And they're dreamin' Time away.

II.

Yet all the birds are singing
In blossoms far and near—
Singing to the toilers
"Natch stormy skies and clear,
Whose toil makes Home so dear."

Nor until we see the dew with torn
And one's eyes digging for hair, will we have any faith in the home-town message: "Spring have come!"

Mockery.

Returnst thou, O silver-throated one,
To mock once more, with love-laden song?
Knowest not a heart can suffer over long,
And grieve itself to madness? Oh,
Go, send a somber little dove to mean
Beneath my darkened window, out among
The sad and lonely pines; I am not Enough to bear thy blithe, joyous tone.

When winter winds were rough and bleak and cold,
When winter skies were dull and leadens gray,
When winter's sudden with the winter rain,
When leaf and flower slept beneath the mold,
'Twas not so bitter hard to face the day.

But I shall die, when summer comes again.

Lord bless the prohibitionist! May to be.

Constancy.

A swallow knows to follow
Where another swallow flies.
And the two in silence skim down
Din wingpaths of the skies.
Little heed of wind or weather,
Only keeping close together.

So your heart with my own heart fill
With a wonder-wealth of mirth.
While we two in consort glide along
Lone winding ways of earth—
Little heed of wind or weather,
Only keeping close together.

Cold Consolation.

"Let us not be weary in well-doing," says a Billville editor, "for in due season we shall reap." We reap not.

Poor Creatures All!

Truly, we are of little worth.
And reap but little profit.
If they should make a harvest of earth
We'd not be worthy of it!

A Wayside Word.

HEALTH TALKS

BY WILLIAM BRADY, M. D.

REST AND GROW FACT.

Having elucidated, I hope, the value of certain exercises in the anabolism or building up of the frail and the gaunt, I now resume the traditional stratagem of the physician and urge upon skinnier folk the value of rest for growing fat.

It is instinctive, physiological and healthful to nap or doze or sleep after a hearty meal. This is often questioned, and the wrong answer is given.
It may be that overindulgence in food, particularly improper food, will disturb or prevent rest and sleep immediately afterward. It is, however, beside the question. It is natural and right to take a nap or to sleep on a full stomach if you feel so inclined. If you are underweight and free to gain, you can do nothing better for that purpose than cultivate the habit of indulging in a daily after-dinner nap or snooze, no matter how wet or how windy, or how the prognosis has been no matter whether dinner for you comes at midday or later. The condition
"free to gain" means that any physical handicap which might offset upbuilding measures has been remedied—and every underweight young person ought to undergo a careful general physical or health examination by a physician to find and remedy any such adverse factors.

Even when tuberculosis, a disease of youth, can be excluded as the explanation for underweight, a given case, late hours and insufficient sleep must be considered among the common causes of malnutrition. In a majority of the cases of malnutrition in youth, an important factor is the bad habit of staying up late nights.
No youth who must be up before 8 o'clock in the morning can afford to get to bed later than 10:30 p. m., and no boy or girl under 18 can do with less than 8 1/2 to 9 hours of sleep regularly. Many try, but at grave cost. A girl who wants to be or keep a good complexion had better get in as many hours of sleep before midnight as a complexion is worth.

If you are a late bed hour and you want to gain, make it your habit to eat a substantial lunch just before you retire. If you can't wrap yourself around a regular dinner, bread or crackers or cookies or cake and milk or a cup of sandwichee without condiments, make a good lunch for fattening purposes. The milk should be pure fresh milk, certified if possible. The cream in the milk is peculiarly favorable to gain in body weight.

The delusion that wine has nourishing or strengthening or tonic virtue is nearly as widespread as home brewing. Either beer or wine has less nourishing, strengthening or tonic virtue than the fruit juice, cereal water and sugar from which it is made, for fermentation destroys some of the nutritive value of the brew. These beverages have less strengthening or tonic virtue than their weight of milk.

A slice of bread and butter with a glass or two of milk for bedtime lunch will make a difference of fifteen pounds a year in some cases.

tion.)

LaGrange, Ga., April 16.—(Special.)—John H. Jones, of The LaGrange Reporter, was elected president of the Fourth District Press association at an organization meeting Tuesday. Other officers elected are: Tinton Coffee, of The West Point

News, first vice president; M. M. Dickinson, of The LaGrange Graphic, second vice president; and O. W. Passavant, of The Swan Herald, secretary and treasurer.

A luncheon sponsored by the staffs of The LaGrange Graphic, The Shuttle and The LaGrange Reporter was given at the entertainment of the visitors.

Newman was selected as the next place of meeting of the association, the date to be set by the president and directors.

The Secret Cabal Makes Another And an Even More Serious Stab At the Rights of the People

BY JAMES A. HOLLOMON

When the tiger gets a taste of blood, his ferocious instincts are aroused for more.

The secret cabal that hand-picked, in a "back room" in the Kimball House, the delegates and alternates from 160 counties in Georgia, without consultation with the county or McAdoo committees in the respective counties, and in violation of the written wishes of Mr. McAdoo, it got its first taste of blood in the most vicious attack on democracy ever attempted at that time in this or any other state in this country.

And now it is crying for more.

A letter has just been sent out by Hollins N. Randolph et al. to every delegate named by the cabal instructing, under the guise of a suggestion, that the delegates of the respective congressional districts do not hold any caucus, or discuss among themselves or to each other, in any manner, any issue to come before the state convention which is to convene in Atlanta on the 23rd, and that no attempt be made to select the delegates and alternates to the national convention from their respective districts, until they meet in convention in Atlanta next Wednesday.

This is in direct violation of procedure in Georgia, of every precedent of the democratic party in Georgia and of every principle of representative government and of home rule.

It is by far an even more serious stab at the rights of the people than even the hand-picking of the county delegates, without consulting their rights and wishes, as was done, and afterwards in tyranny and autocracy the disgraceful actions of the cabal in tearing down county autonomy, and in setting up a dictatorship from a "secret recess," which was unmercifully scored by Mr. McAdoo in his Chicago statement, who obviously had no knowledge that his own written wishes as to the appointment of Georgia delegates had been trampled under foot.

Democracy in Georgia has never been brought to its knees in this manner before.

Since the political history of Georgia was in its infancy it has been customary for the county delegates, in each and every congressional district, chosen as they are to select and offer their own list of district delegates and alternates to a national convention, to meet prior to the state convention, and in that meeting or caucus elect the delegates and alternates from that district to the national convention. These lists to be handled in and ratified by the state convention.

Any other course has been unthinkable in this government of the people.

Now comes the secret cabal and instructs, under the guise of a suggestion, that this rule of democracy be abrogated by one swoop of tyrannical dictatorship, and that no caucus or conference or man-to-man discussion take place between the delegates until they come together in convention.

Why?

There is only one answer, for there can be no speculation on such a flagrant, high-handed attempt at preventing the people from being heard, or from being anything more than mere pawns on the chess-board for the "manipulators," although Mr. McAdoo has denounced the manipulation of conventions in words that ring around the continent.

Shall the time-honored district caucus, by which the delegates of the several counties in any congressional district shall have the right to choose their own representatives in the national convention, be trampled under foot by this triumvirate of conspirators in Atlanta?

Have the people lost all their rights, all their voice, all their individuality, all of their inalienable privileges as citizens and voters in this state, in which Mr. McAdoo, who stands for a democracy of the people, was born?

Who would have thought it possible?

Who would have thought that the time would ever come in Georgia when any individual, or cabal, would dare to take from the people of the counties first their rights to appoint delegates to the state convention and more especially from the delegates in a congressional district their rights to name their own representatives to a national democratic convention?

The tiger tastes the blood and paws the ground for more blood.

But the people are aroused. The delegates themselves are aroused.

The women voters of Georgia are aroused—particularly the women delegates to the state convention.

I have seen telegrams from many of them today—

What shall be the women's portion in this conspiracy to steam-roll "manipulate" the convention.

The nineteenth amendment gives equal voting and political rights to women as are given to men.

It eliminates sex discrimination.

Is it a proposal to cut them out of their privileges in the convention or to largely ignore them in the state at large and district delegations to the national convention, as well as to ram down the throats of the delegates of a district the national delegates from that district to New York, chosen from the "back room"?

Whatever it is, the roar of thunder is sweeping from the sea to the mountains, for the people are determined that democracy shall not be crucified in this manner by Hollins Randolph and his associates in the secret cabal, or by any other group of usurpers and dictators.

Oh, What A Foretaste!

An American explorer has discovered a new kind of fruit. The flavor sounds alluring enough. It is a combination of strawberry, banana and pineapple. The plant grows in Central America and is known as the "Chioti." Think of the wonders soda fountain artists could perform with such a delicacy. On one dish could be served a banana split, a pineapple sundae and a dish of strawberry ice cream. The explorer, Dr. Wilson Popenoe, of the department of agriculture, thinks that the fruit should be introduced here. We suggest dropping that evil western sounding name and call it something like the "angel's whisper."

Man Rises Is Thought Expressed.

Carl Akley's bronze statue, The Christ, is to be placed in the Unitarian church of New York. The Christ is depicted as a huge ape and is indeed a masterpiece of sculpturing. Notwithstanding the fact that it was refused admittance by several art societies, there are some people who think it an apt in the church. Really, the statue is replete with spiritual significance. Akley has tried to reproduce the semblance of man emerging from the likeness of his ape-like ancestors. Man rising above his animal progenitors. "Man rising," that alone is sufficient spiritual thought.

Christ for All Mankind.

Giovanni Papini is trying to preach a Latinized Christ, says a prominent literary reviewer. "A Latin Christ on Caesar's throne," are the words he uses. That is not the true Christ of Papini's work. There are indeed some who have tried to force a Latin Christ on the world for several centuries. Christ is a spirit; the spirit of God. In Jesus of Nazareth there was an overflowing measure of this spirit. But there is some in every human being, although it is often hidden and crushed. Papini may seem an apostle of the Latin Jesus, but with Christ with his universal application appeal it would be impossible to make either Latin, Jew or Greek. He is for all the world.

THE WORLD'S WINDOW

BY PIERRE VAN PASSEN

They Cursed Fritz In Their Terrible Agony.

All Potsdam was in gala last week during the celebrations of Germany's independence.

One scene is worth watching. Five hundred thousand nationalists with seventy military bands at their head, marched toward the field of review. Suddenly a murmur ran through the crowds. Frederick William, Hohenzollern, the crown prince, had arrived. Immediately the cheering broke loose. Fritz acted quite nonchalant, he hardly paid attention. Was this a triumph in honor? He did not know it. He is a good actor. His opportunity came a few minutes later. The massed bands struck up "Frederick Rex," the marching tune of Prussia's armies in the days of Frederick the Great. Recognizing the tune, Fritz jumped to his feet. Five hundred thousand nationalists followed. They grew delirious with enthusiasm. Then the bands followed with "Deutschland, Deutschland, Ueber Alles." Fritz stood at the salute and the five hundred thousand with him. There was no cheering but the silence was more eloquent than the thunderous "Heeds" AT THAT MOMENT THE WIND SIGHED THROUGH THE YOUNG TREES THAT GROW ON THE HILLS BEFORE VERDUN. WHERE FIVE HUNDRED THOUSAND GERMANS SLEEP FOREVER.

"O Reason, Come To Our Aid"

British banks are receiving enormous gold shipments from Russia as credit basis for huge orders for war material. Vickers alone has a contract to manufacture 2,000 airplanes before spring. Clothing, shoes, rifles, ammunition, tanks and hospital supplies are scheduled to leave Britain by the boat load within a few weeks. Now this does not mean that the Russians want peace and therefore are preparing for war. They are preparing for war, because they want war. Paris believes that by spring the soviets will march upon Rumania and Poland. Propaganda is not enough. The soviets must have force of arms. If Russia actually attacks Poland and Rumania, France will be drawn in. Italy and Britain, who have recognized Russia, will remain neutral, but the great question is Germany. Should Germany side with the soviet or world conflagration is not improvable.

Greece A Republic Again.

Greece has been made a republic by popular vote. King George loses his job for good. He is the thirteenth monarch to have that experience since the great war. The day of kings, who rule by divine grace, is past. We now get another brand of monarchs in the world. The name does not matter. Mussolini, the dictator, has more power than any Italian king ever had, and Rykoff, in Russia, rules with greater measure of autocracy than Czar Nicholas. It is the temporary reaction against autocracy, but it will pass away. Dictatorship may be right in an emergency, but when dictators attempt to prolong their tenure of office beyond the allotted time, the people will sweep them away after the thrones of yesterday.

FUTURE OF AUTOMOBILE INDUSTRY DISCUSSED

The future of the automobile industry was discussed in an address Wednesday night by George Brush, of the Auburn-Abston company, at the April

HOW IS YOUR COLON TODAY?

Tell me how your colon is functioning and I will tell you how you feel, sleep and eat. If your colon is emptying itself freely, regularly and completely every day, you feel young, energetic and vigorous; sleep soundly and awake refreshed; eat with relish, enjoy your meals and digest thoroughly. If your colon is lazy and lacking in tone so that the poisonous matters are being retained and re-absorbed into your system, you feel nervous, irritable, weak, dyspeptic and prematurely old.

Colon poisoning (auto-intoxication) is the most common cause of chronic diseases and premature degeneration of the vital organs. Millions suffer without realizing how easily the cause can be removed. Tell your druggist to send you a bottle of Cololone—the colon tonic. It will quickly restore tone to the muscular walls of your colon. Your toxic condition will disappear and you will feel young, energetic and vigorous. Cololone removes the cause of constipation. Your druggist is instructed to refund the price, one dollar, if you are not thoroughly delighted with Cololone. (adv.)

for coughs
Use PISO'S this prescription quickly relieves children and adults.
A pleasant syrup. No opiates.
35c and 60c bottles.
Bottle.

Getting Too Fat? Try This—Reduce

People who don't grow too fat are the fortunate ones. But if you find the fat accumulating on your shoulders, arms, waist, hips, thighs, buttocks, etc., you know you are too fat. Ask your druggist for Maxima Fat-Reducer Tablets and follow the directions. One dollar is the price the world over. Get them from your own druggist or send price to Maxima Co., 414 W. Washington, Detroit, Mich. By doing this you will be safe from harmful drugs and be able to reduce steadily and easily without starvation diet or tireless exercise. (adv.)

Simple Home Treatment For Swollen Veins

If you or any relative or friend is worried because of varicose veins, or hunches, the best advice that anyone in this world can give is to get a prescription that many physicians are now prescribing.

Ask Jacobs' Pharmacy Co. for an original two-ounce bottle of Emerald Oil (oil strength) and apply night and morning to the swollen, enlarged veins. Soon you will notice that they are growing smaller and the treatment should be continued until the veins are of normal size. Emerald Oil is a powerful, yet harmless germicide and results are guaranteed. (adv.)

Fine for Neuralgia

Musterole insures quick relief from neuralgia. When those sharp pains go shooting through your head, just rub a little of this clean, white ointment on your temples and neck.

Musterole is made with oil of mustard, but will not burn and blister like the old-fashioned mustard plaster. To Mothers: Musterole is also made in milder form for babies and small children. Ask for Children's Musterole. 25c and 50c in jars and tubes; hospital size, $3.

MUSTEROLE WILL NOT BLISTER
BETTER THAN A MUSTARD PLASTER

Weak Eyes? Camphor

If you have weak, aching eyes try simple camphor, witchhazel, hyacinth, etc., as mixed in Lavoptik eye wash. One small bottle helps any eye weak, strained or sore. Ask for Aluminum eye cup free. Jacobs' Pharmacy Co.—(adv.)

The Popular Way To Remove Hair

And also the quick, sure, satisfactory way. Use Dela-tone. This reliable, scientific preparation has been in general use for 14 years. To remove any growth of hair just apply in smooth paste, wash off, and marvel at the result. Made by The Sheffield Co., 336 Lake Shore Drive, Chicago. At drug and department stores or sent prepaid in plain wrapper for one dollar.

meeting of the Atlanta Automobile association. Mr. Brush was the principal speaker at the meeting held on the Cecil hotel roof.

A program of vaudeville numbers and musical features, arranged by Mr. Brush, preceded the address by Mr. Brush.

The Million Dollar Hunch was the title of Mr. Brush's speech. He told how recent years have weeded out incompetents in the automotive industry, saying that the "million dollar hunch" have all got out, leaving nothing but the "is-ers." He said the automobile salesman of today ought to devote much time to careful study of his business, in order to properly equip himself to take fullest advantage of the opportunities of the business.

Success in any business organization, he continued, depends on loyalty of the entire force, and enthusiasm for the products it handles. It is the business of the automobile salesman, he said, not only to convince his customer of the particular make of car he is handling is the best value on the market, but that in service and ability to serve, his firm is the best dealer organization selling that or any other make of car.

John Smith, a member of the association and also a member of the Atlanta Safety council, briefly described the objects of the "Safe Drivers' Club," and urged all present not only to join themselves, but to see that their salesmen, drivers of their service cars and other employees who drive cars are members.

W. B. Troy, of the Junior Chamber of Commerce, asked all members of the association to permit employees half holiday this afternoon to attend the opening day baseball game between Atlanta and Chattanooga.

Secretary C. V. Huberstein reported on the activities of the membership committee, reading the names of 17 new members who have been secured during the past two months.

Featuring the entertainment program were Miss Ives Marvin, Atlanta girl who leaves Saturday to open an engagement with Keith Handell in Detroit, and her pianist, Mrs. Forrest Cassidy; Tom Denby, baritone; and Misses Margaret Moorhead and Virginia Robinson, dancers. An orchestra played the latest popular musical numbers during the course of the dinner.

COOLIDGE LETTER UPHELD BY LODGE

day by Senator Glass, democrat, Virginia.

"I do not think there is any ground for finding fault with the president on communicating his views on matters like this," he continued. "History shows that the president never has hesitated to communicate with congress to give the views on many subjects, especially those affecting the administration of the government."

"The presidents have exercised wide discretion in the subjects upon which they have communicated with the senate. President Wilson addressed the senate on constitutional amendments, with the enactment of which under the constitution he had no part. I do not find fault with that; he had a perfect right to do so."

Went Beyond Authority.

Addressing the revenue bureau investigating committee, Senator Lodge declared that committee "clearly went beyond its authority in attempting the employment of counsel to be paid by a member."

"It certainly has not been the practice since I have been here," he said, "I cannot believe it was, or is in the interest of the senate to authorize such a procedure."

When President Coolidge referred to objectionable "intrusions," the senator said, he had reference to the "apparent employment of an outsider" to dig into official files. The republican leader read the message line by line, giving his interpretation as he proceeded.

"The language is strong," he agreed, "but it was necessary. The senate has extended its functions and, in newspaper parlance, had created a new office in the person of committee prosecutor."

The internal revenue inquiry really was intended to "break down" Secretary Mellon, Senator Lodge said.

"There is much more in this than politics," he declared. "It is aimed at the secretary of the treasury, because he is the author of a great bill in which the whole country is interested."

It was against the unlawful employment of special counsel by an individual senator for these purposes, the senator said, that the president had protested.

EFFECTS OF VOTE TO EXCLUDE JAPS

is foreshadowed in the succinct statement of Foreign Minister Matsui, at Tokio.

"You are our greatest customer and we are a greater purchaser of your goods than all the remainder of the far east combined."

A large trade has been built up in the last few years, which is on the upgrade. American business concerns have scattered their agencies throughout the islands. Japan is in a position to retaliate through restrictive trade regulations. She might even enact coastwise shipping laws that would be troublesome to the American merchant marine.

May Hit Americans

The most direct reprisal at the outset which Japan could and might take would be exclusion of Americans by law. In their view, this would be only a fair exchange.

Further than this, Japan could avoid the spirit of the open door in China, though still retaining the letter of the agreement which was drawn up at the Washington conference, and do considerable damage to the aims of American business concerns in China. At the present time, there is a contest between American and Japanese concerns for concessions there.

May Recall Hanihara

The disruption of cordial relations can lead far in various ways, all of which cannot now be calculated. Japan's cooperation is not only helpful in Japan itself, but throughout the far east where her sphere of influence extends.

As the situation continues tense here, there is talk of recalling Ambassador Hanihara, who has been the target of the burden has fallen. Hanihara, a stout, jolly little man, is very popular in the diplomatic corps here under Ambassador Takahira, in the Roosevelt administration.

He was close to the drawing of the original "gentlemen's agreement" between Takahira and Secretary of State Root. He was twice-time ambassador general at San Francisco, and was a leading figure in the arms conference.

SENATE ADOPTS NEW QUOTA BASE

Washington, April 16.—The senate put itself formally on record today on the question of Japanese exclusion by ratifying the Shortridge exclusion amendment to the immigration bill, 71 to 4.

Reconsideration of the amendment, which was approved yesterday without a record vote, was had at the request of Senator Reed, republican, Pennsylvania, in charge of the bill.

The only surprise developed by the roll call was in the number of opponents, as only two senators had voted to recognize in law the "gentlemen's agreement" with Japan on the immigration question. They were Colt of Rhode Island, and Sterling of South Dakota. Joining them today in opposing the exclusion amendment were McLean, of Connecticut, and Warren, of Wyoming, all republicans.

Harris Amendment Lost

After the vote on the exclusion question, the senate disposed of two other amendments, accepting without a roll call an amendment relating to "origin of nationalities" and rejecting, 46 to 16, another by Senator Harris, democrat, Georgia, which would have closed the doors of immigration for five years. Only one republican, Jones, of Washington, supported the Harris amendment. A compromise amendment relating to the "origin of nationalities" as a basis for immigrant quotas agreed upon by Senator Reed, of Pennsylvania, and Harrison, of Mississippi, was approved by the senate. Under its provisions the origin of nationalities" would be among those people who could not be assimilated, and should be excluded on principle.

Estimate Origin

The secretaries of state, commerce and labor would make an estimate showing as nearly as possible the several national origins of the persons who in 1920 comprised the whole population of continental United States and would make known by March 4, 1926, the quotas of each nationality, the annual quota to bear the same ratio to the maximum total number of immigrants as the number of inhabitants of the United States having that national origin bear to the whole number of inhabitants.

The question of the percentage of the quotas which are to be in force until the "origin of nationalities" basis is adopted was pending when the senate recessed until tomorrow. The bill as reported proposes the 1910 census as a basis for determining the quotas and there are three proposals on percentage—one by Senator Willis, republican, Ohio, for one per cent; another by Senator Copeland, democrat, New York, for three per cent; and one by the committee for two per cent.

This question and that of the census furnish the remaining real fighting points in the bill. While the committee has proposed the 1910 census, a determined fight will be made by a number of senators to adopt the house plan of the 1890 census with two per cent as the quota.

SENATOR GEORGE EXPLAINS HIS VOTE

Washington, April 16.—(Special.) Senator George, of Georgia, explaining his vote for the Japanese exclusion provision of the immigration bill, declared in the senate Wednesday that he voted as he did not because of anything which was said in the letter of Ambassador Hanihara but because of his belief that the Japanese were among those people who could not be assimilated, and should be excluded on principle.

"As far as I'm concerned," Senator George said, "I find no reason for my vote in the letter of the Japanese ambassador."

He declared that if the Hanihara letter had been the only factor, he would have voted in the negative. He could not agree, he said, with those senators who had voted for abrogation of the "gentlemen's agreement" and the subsequent insertion of an exclusion provision solely because of the language of the letter from the Japanese ambassador.

Question of Assimilation

As far as the letter is concerned, he pointed out, Japan has the right to determine whether the language that was used was to be implied as a "velvet threat" as it has been characterized in the senate. He would not be surprised, he said, if the Japanese government did not deny that any such thing was intended.

"We must come to the conclusion," Senator George said, explaining the reason for his vote, "that there are people who can't assimilate. I don't care to discuss the question of superiority or inferiority, but just this fact that there are non-assimilable peoples."

In voting for total exclusion of the Japanese, the senate must also consider in treating other nationalities the ease with which those people as similate, on the same basis, and act accordingly, he stated.

Senator George launched from an explanation of his vote on the Japanese question into a general discussion of immigration, stressing throughout his speech that this principle of assimilation must be the guide for framing immigration legislation.

"The question of immigration," he declared, "is the most important question before the nation. The ideals of the future are based on immigration. It underlies and overshadows all other questions."

WATTS TELLS OF TROUBLE THAT LASTED 20 YEARS

Atlanta Merchant Found Relief From Stomach Trouble by Taking Tanlac.

After suffering for twenty years or more from stomach trouble, with only brief intervals of relief, and getting into such a run-down condition he could hardly attend to his business, M. P. Watts, well-known Atlanta merchant, residing at 388 S. Boulevard, declares the Tanlac treatment has given him the best health he has had in years.

"I started taking Tanlac without expecting much," says Mr. Watts, "but I noticed it was helping me from the very first bottle. I kept up the treatment regular for four or five months till my appetite and digestion had become normal, and my general health greatly improved. Now all the pain and discomfort I formerly had has entirely disappeared. I still use Tanlac occasionally; it's a great medicine, and to it alone I owe my present fine health."

Tanlac is for sale by all good druggists. Accept no substitute. Over 40 Million Bottles sold.—(adv.)

PETRELS BEAT PANTHERS

Barbee Saves
Game; Score
8 to 4

BY BILL MORROW.

After getting off to a three-run lead, the Birmingham-Southern lads weakened before a consistent attack on the part of the Oglethorpe batters and the Petrels turned in an 8 to 4 win over the Panthers yesterday afternoon on Hermance field. The Petrel victory came after Dave Barbee had pitched a "bullet" game, the latter later individual's offerings having been touched for four hits and three runs in the one and one-third innings he performed in the box. Barbee pitched a nice game for the Oglethorpe clan, surrendering only three hits to the visiting force while the Petrel swatters collected 14 safe hits off the offerings of Hamilton. Though Hamilton's deliveries were seemingly easy pickings for the Oglethorpe batters only one extra base hit was accounted for, this being Parish's triple in the sixth frame. The Panthers did not tally an extra base hit during the afternoon's combat, their safe blows being confined to the single variety.

The Oglethorpe tallies came in every inning except the third, seventh and eighth frames, while the visitors tallied their scores in a batting spree off the offerings of Peace in the second, and scoring a runner across the final rubber in the sixth. This marked the last Birmingham player to score the counting mark.

Sensational Catch.
Although the affair of yesterday afternoon lacked the closeness of the first meeting between these foes, the game was not without features. The catch of "Truck" Porter in the seventh of Englebert's foul fly near the first base line caused this Petrel star to get a shout of acclamation from friend and foe alike. Englebert had knocked a fly about halfway between the home plate and the first bag and when Porter caught the ball he fell heavily, holding the ball as he slid, face up, on the dirt.

Both combinations played nice ball during the afternoon, the outfielders handling many tries in the garden without a single miscue being chalked against either force. The infielders also came in for a plenty of praise, Williams, for the Panthers, and Partridge, for the Petrels, being the shining lights in their respective departments.

The work of J. Partridge at the second corner for the Petrels has been such that, in the event his play keeps up his good work he should be picked for All-Southern honors at this difficult post. Partridge has fielded blows to his credit well, known very rarely getting by this shifty infielder. With the willow Partridge has also shown his work and although not leading the list in hits, he has delivered in the pitches when safe hits meant counters.

Barbee Gets Two Hits.
"Lefty" Peace, Coach Anderson's pick for mound duty, failed to have the hoodoo sign on the Birmingham lads and in the second frame they touched him for four hits and three runs before he was replaced by Barbee. With the score standing at three counters for the Panthers and not a score for the Petrels, Barbee entered the box and besides pitching a cool, careful game, also totaled two safe singles out of three trips to the rubber.

The win yesterday afternoon marked the Petrels' fifth victory out of six starts, Dartmouth being the only loss to hand in a letter card. The Oglethorpe clan will mark time on Hermance field Friday and Saturday, meeting South Carolina in their Peachtree road bouts on two occasions, while the Birmingham-Southern representatives will move on to Furman for two meetings in the Hornet's locality.

Avera to Fight
Wop April 26

Larry Avera, managed by Billy Lotz now, will fight the Wallopin' Wop at Fort McPherson April 26, Lotz announced Wednesday. The Wallopin' Wop is a favorite of the soldiers. He recently fought a draw with Jimmy Finley at St. Petersburg, Florida.

Avera, now training hard and under the skillful guidance of the veteran Lotz, has made a great record during the last months and fans where he has recently shown have demanded return fights to get another glimpse at the blonde phantom, as they have called him because of his remarkable speed.

SPALDING LEAGUE IS AFTER UMPIRES

The Spaulding league and the Dixie league, two amateur organizations in Atlanta, will start the season's grind Saturday afternoon, and are very anxious to secure several good umpires to officiate.

At the present, J. C. Turner is umpire in chief, and if anyone wishes to participate as an official in the activities, can reach him by calling Ivy 3567.

This is the first time that the Dixie league has been seen in action, but, however, the Spaulding association has been in action for the past year or so.

NATIONAL LEAGUE

PIRATES EVEN SERIES.

Cincinnati, Ohio, April 16.—Pittsburgh won the second game of the season, 7 to 1. The Reds today by the smallest possible score, after a great pitchers' battle between Cooper and Luque, in which the Pirate left-hander had just the necessary shade. The only run was scored in the ninth inning on Carey's single, a sacrifice. Carey's feat of third, and a single by Traynor. The Reds got only one man to second base, and none as far as third.

CUBS ROMP ON CARDS.
St. Louis, Mo., April 16.—Batting three pitchers out of the box, the Chicago Cubs leveled the series with the St. Louis Cardinals here today, 13 to 4.

The Cardinals threatened only in the fourth when Mueller tripled and scored on Bell's home run. The veteran Alexander allowed 11 hits but tightened in the seventh. Horanby forced Blades at the plate and Bottomley hit into a double play, Grantham to Grimes.

Strib Matched With Paul Berlenbach

New York, April 16.—Youn Stribling, Georgia light-heavyweight and Paul Berlenbach, of New York, knockout sensation, have been matched in a bout planned as a feature of benefit show for the New York military fund in June, it was learned today.

Contracts have not been signed, was said, nor have details concerning the date and place of the show been determined. It is expected, however, that the promotion will be handled by Tex Rickard, who staged the mid fund benefit show last summer.

Stribling's willingness to meet Berlenbach, it was said, may forecast reversal of the state athletic commission's decision barring the Georgia fighter from more than six rounds in this state until he is 21.

"Pa" Stribling asserted recently that except for the Olympic fund benefit in which Young Stribling agreed to box six rounds with Mike Burge, he would not allow his son to fight here unless the commission rescinded its action.

Tech Rats Face
Preps on Track

The Tech freshmen in track will have a wee bit of competition this p. m. Boys' High, Tech High and G. M. A. will furnish the competition. With the exception of field day in which some freshmen participate the rats have had no opportunity to show their stuff to the public.

Although the meet this afternoon will be technically termed a practice affair, it will have all the earmarks of a real championship meet. Many are the track stars from prep schools who have come to Tech for this batch of freshmen, Nixon, section of the freshman football team last fall, stands out as one of the most promising track candidates years. His particular event is the 400 yds.

On field day big Nixon put a shot over 41 feet, breaking the Tech record, held by Joe Guyon, and winning for himself a letter.

Flintstone Is Winner of Race

Havre de Grace, Md., April 16.—Flintstone won the $5,000 Hartfield handicap for three year olds, opening of the spring meeting at the track today. Shuffle Along was second and Swing Along third.

Time for the six furlongs, 1:57. Dominique, Comix, Dunlin, Kinbie, Mainmast, New Hampshire, Champlain and Prince of Umbria a ran.

The matinee paid Flintstone $19 to win, $10.60 second, $5.40 third. Shuffle Along $12.50 and $7.50. Swing Along $4.60.

Flintstone won by a nose from Shuffle Along with Swing Along close third. Dominique made a running to the stretch, where he quit. Shuffle Along, second all the way to the front in the last quarter but could not withstand Flintstone's rush. Swing Along came from the back to take third easily.

ville for the opening game. Thompson or Gallagher will probably be on the firing line, while Larzo is scheduled in the opening game, though Snyder may be used in the first game.

Jack Snyder Is Sent to Macon

Macon, Ga., April 16.—Jack Snyder, catcher of the Macon team in 1916 and who had a batting average of .344 that year, being sold to Brooklyn at that time, rejoins the Peaches in Greenville, S. C., tomorrow, it was announced by E. G. Jacobs, president of the club, tonight.

The Macon team will leave here early tomorrow morning for Greenville.

Lovely New York Visitor Entertained at Club Affairs

One of the loveliest affairs on Wednesday's social calendar was the luncheon at which Mrs. Annie Adair Foster entertained at the Druid Hills Golf Club, honoring Mrs. Charles Dana, of New York, and her two sisters, Mrs. Frank Adair, a trio of beautiful young women.

The guests were seated for luncheon at an exquisitely appointed table placed in the palm room of the club. A plateau of pink tulips formed the central decoration and surrounding it were tall silver candelabras holding pink tapers. The bouquets were enmeshed in tiny pink flowers and the place cards were hand-painted in lovely pink poppies.

A delightful feature of the occasion was a toast given by the hostess to Mrs. Dana, whose presence in Atlanta has added much pleasure to the social functions of the fashionable contingent.

Mrs. Foster received her guests wearing an afternoon gown of black satin with jet trimmings and a black lace hat.

Mrs. Dana was becomingly gowned in blue silk crepe trimmed in yellow, with a navy blue hat.

Mrs. Perry wore a black georgette gown and a black hat.

Mrs. Adair was gowned in black chambray, worn with a smart little black hat.

Mrs. Dana, who was formerly Miss Agnes Landon, of Atlanta, has been one of the noted visitors of the week, and the luncheon given Tuesday at the Piedmont Driving Club was the first social affair marking her visit.

Mrs. Perry and Mrs. Adair were hosts at a buffet luncheon which was served in the gray dining room of the club. Dresden colors were used in the decorations and gracing the center of the table were five slender silver vases filled with jonquils, snapdragons, sweetpeas, tulips, roses and other spring flowers arranged to form a gorgeous mound. Encircling this were silver candelsticks holding tall, shaded white tapers, and silver compartments were filled with white mints.

Mrs. Hildreth To Be Honored At Luncheon

Mrs. Arthur G. Hildreth, wife of Dr. Arthur G. Hildreth, of Macon, Mo., who is a noted osteopathic physician, will be honor guest at luncheon Friday at the Ansley hotel, given by the Georgia division of Osteopathic Women National association.

Dr. Susan Reed Rottenfield, state chairman, will preside over the informal meeting that will precede the luncheon.

Covers will be placed for ten guests, including Dr. Elizabeth Lightfoot Branch, president of the Georgia Osteopathic association; Dr. Nannie B. Riley, of Rome; Dr. Mary Layne, of Griffin; Dr. Sarah Cantrell, of Gainesville; Dr. Louise Tipton, Dr. Eva House, of Savannah; Dr. Ida Ulmer, of Valdosta; Dr. Gussie Phillips and Dr. Cordelia Moore.

Other social affairs will be tendered the delegates attending the meeting of Georgia Osteopaths being held in Atlanta Thursday and Friday.

Mr. and Mrs. Yancey To Celebrate Golden Wedding Anniversary

Mr. and Mrs. Hamilton Yancey, of Rome, have issued invitations to a reception which will celebrate the fiftieth anniversary of their marriage, Tuesday evening, April 29, to be given at their home, 906 Second avenue, in Rome, from 8 to 11 o'clock.

Mr. and Mrs. Yancey are among the most prominent and distinguished Georgians and are beloved pioneer residents of Rome. Their hospitality has been extended to many Atlantans, and they are noted for the very charming and gracious manner in which they entertain.

Receiving with Mr. and Mrs. Yancey on this eventful occasion will be their sons and daughters, Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Hewlett, Mr. and Mrs. Austin Clark, of Atlanta; Mr. and Mrs. Ben Yancey, of Rome; Mr. and Mrs. Hamilton Yancey, III, of Americus; Mr. and Mrs. George Newton, of Denver, Colo.; Mr. and Mrs. Donald Gillis, of Cleveland, Ohio. Assisting in entertaining will be their grandchildren, Misses Florence, Sarah, Amelia and Claire Hewlett, Samuel Hewlett, Jr., Austin Clark, Jr., of Atlanta; Miss Mary Lou Gillis and Donald Gillis, Jr., of Cleveland.

Quite a party of well-known Atlantans will motor to Rome for this brilliant affair, which will be an interesting as well as an outstanding society event.

Many To Attend Grand Opera From Griffin

A large number of prominent people from Griffin, Ga., will attend Grand Opera here next week and will be entertained at many of the social functions during the season. The group includes Miss Antoinette Smith, Mr. and Mrs. A. B. Combs, Mr. and Mrs. M. J. Daniel, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Pittman, Mr. and Mrs. Jewell Bell, Mr. and Mrs. William MacDougall, Miss Mary Lela Patterson, Mr. and Mrs. J. M. Brown, Mrs. Cooper Newton and her guests, Mr. and Mrs. Neely Smith; Mr. and Mrs. Frank Ingram, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Murray, Dr. and Mrs. J. M. Thomas, Mr. and Mrs. Freeman Hart, Miss Elizabeth Norman, Mr. and Mrs. Roskin and Miss Bernice Spiker, of Washington, D. C.

Mr. and Mrs. Joseph M. Slattery have returned from Havana, Cuba, where they have spent the past eight months. They are at home for the present at the Cecil hotel.

Georgian Terrace Tea Dances To Assemble Large Number

Among the most beautiful and enjoyable of the many social affairs to be given during opera week are the tea dances at the Georgian Terrace hotel. Again, these lovely affairs will assemble a large number of Atlanta's older and younger social contingent, out-of-town guests and opera stars.

On Tuesday, Thursday and Saturday following the opera matinees tea will be served on the broad terrace and the lounge room of the hotel. Those desiring to make reservations are requested to call the Georgian Terrace as early as possible.

Among those entertaining on Tuesday are: Mrs. Charles M. Roberts, Mrs. D. N. McCullough, Mrs. E. D. Tolson, Mrs. Don A. Pardee, Colonel W. L. Peel, Mrs. George Walker, Mrs. Marion Harper and Mrs. E. H. Barnett.

Miss Morey Honors Delta Pi Delta Sorority.

The Delta Pi Delta sorority of Woodbury Hall was delightfully entertained Tuesday afternoon by Miss Virginia Morey at her home on Peachtree street.

Those present were Miss Juanita

Daniel, president; Miss Dorothy Mahoney, vice president; Miss Virginia Morey, treasurer; Miss Genevieve Hopkinson, secretary, and Misses Jane Boyer, Martha Yarbrough, Harriet Fusse, Edythe Wilson, Beverly Dreha, Eleanor McManon, Mary Lamb, Grace Pardo, Margaret Hardy and others.

Garden Club Offers Prize For Campaign

Atlanta's clean-up campaign took on added zest on Wednesday following the offer of the Peachtree Garden club to confer a special prize for a particular piece of "clean-up" work.

The announcement was made by Mrs. Hugh Dorsey, representing Mrs. Phinny Calhoun, president of the club, and came as a pleasing surprise at the luncheon to the leaders in the campaign given by Fred Coolidge, secretary of the central committee.

Mr. Coolidge entertained the heads of all committees at luncheon at the Ansley hotel and the occasion brought together many enthusiastic workers in this important undertaking.

The Peachtree Garden club has recently become a member club in the Atlanta Federation of Women's Clubs, and has taken for its special work the stimulation of interest in lawns and gardens. Flowers and shade trees are advocated and planted wherever possible by the members and the offering of a prize to be used as an additional motive for clean-up work is the first time the club has carried on civic work outside of its own member ship.

Details regarding the form the prize will take and the feature for which it will be offered will be worked out by a committee appointed by the president of the Garden club, Mrs. Calhoun, and the president of the Atlanta federation, Mrs. T. T. Stevens.

Kle Club To Give Children's Party.

The Kle club will celebrate the Easter time by giving a children's entertainment at the Elks' Home on Friday, April 25, in the afternoon.

Mrs. Frank Nadele, the efficient chairman of the committee sponsoring the party, has arranged a splendid program, which will be announced in detail later. The nominal charge of ten cents for children and twenty-five cents for grown-ups will be charged. The proceeds of this party will be used to defray expenses of the Christmas tree parties for children that is an annual affair with the Elks of Atlanta.

The members of the Kle club and their friends are urged to bring all the children they can to the entertainment. Kle club members are also Needlework Guild Holds Board Meeting.

The executive board of the Needlework guild met at the home of Mrs. Arnold Broyles on Tuesday morning to plan the details of their spring activities. Mrs. B. M. Boykin, president of the guild, announced that the achievements of the guild had received the enthusiastic commendation of the national organization and that a large delegation from the Atlanta guild will attend the national convention to be held in the near future.

Opera-Musicales Brought to Close By Gounod's Faust

Never before in Atlanta has the interpretation of an opera been more artistically given than was Gounod's famous Faust as read by Miss Carolyn Cobb, Atlanta's finished artist and dramatic reader, Wednesday afternoon at the Atlanta Woman's club.

Particularly impressive was the scene presented by Miss Cobb where Marguerite was characterized as invoking mercy from her Heavenly Father for the adored lover's salvation, and the dramatic interpretation of the scene in prison proved her magnificent ability for deep dramatics. This important character in Faust will be presented in the Metropolitan Grand Opera by the famous Francis Alda.

Mrs. J. R. Calvert, who always charms an audience with her delightful soprano, was in fine voice and sang the role of Marguerite in the famous Jewel song in most artistic manner.

Miss Frances Gilliland, in her rich contralto, took the role of Martia and proved a splendid support to the cast with her charming and youthful appearance.

Charles Hoke and Ernest Allen, with their rich tenor and baritone voices, rendered the musical roles of Faust and Mephistopheles with splendid ability and effectiveness. A special feature of the afternoon was the beautiful dancing of Miss Franziska Mueller in an interpretive selection.

A violin duet given by Mrs. Annie Munger Mueller and Miss Nell Minger proved them delightful artists.

The club is deeply indebted to Mrs. Charles Hoke, director, for the exceedingly artistic accompaniment she rendered. Mrs. Hoke is one of the city's most talented and finished musicians and it is indeed a rare treat to hear her in opera music.

Mrs. Alonzo Richardson introduced the artists and announced the largest audience ever having attended, during the entire series. She expressed the deep gratitude of the club for the splendid cooperation given by the great number of artists whose contributions have made the musicales such a success. Faust closes the series of operaganzas.

Win One Class To Be Entertained.

The members of the Win One Wesley class will be entertained on Thursday evening by Miss Lillie B. McKay, Miss Martha Stovall and Miss Corinne Smith in the Sunday school room of the First Methodist church. All members are urged to be present at 6:30 o'clock.

Writers' Club Elects Officers At Anniversary Dinner

The first anniversary dinner and business meeting of the Atlanta Writers' club, given in the banquet hall of the Atlanta Woman's club Tuesday evening, was a brilliant gathering of more than one hundred members and guests—an intellectual feast that has perhaps never been surpassed by a similar occasion in Atlanta.

At the business session of the meeting the retiring president, Dudley R. Cowles, who would not for business reasons accept another term, was unanimously elected president emeritus.

The officers elected were James B. Nevin, president; William Cole Jones, first vice president; James A. Holloman, second vice president; Arthur Codrington, third vice president; Miss Jessie Hopkins, secretary; Mrs. Adelaide Howell Bower, corresponding secretary; Dr. B. McHugh Kline, treasurer.

The annual dues were reduced to $5 a year.

The literary and entertainment period of the occasion James A. Holloman, of The Constitution, acted as toastmaster and stressed in his opening address the great services that had been rendered the club by the retiring president, Mr. Cowles.

There were many guests of honor, elected among whom were Governor and Mrs. Clifford Walker.

Governor Walker, in the brief opening address of the program, added his commendation to the work and efforts of the Writers' club, and spoke of the splendid work being accomplished by the various other organizations of Atlanta devoted to the promotion of the cultural life of the city and country.

William Cole Jones, of The Atlanta Journal, read a paper, "The New Poetry," presenting in an interesting and informative manner the weakness and strength of the new poetry, classifying it as "hyper-subjective." "The new poetry is different because conditions are different," he declared. "The modern poets are not content with shadows nor trailing clouds of glory," but search in bizarre nooks for their material. They like to portray bright color and hard, sharp edges. The new poetry is at times garish, and, at times, incisive and stimulating," he stated.

Walter B. Briggs, assistant librarian of Harvard university, discussed briefly the class of material which the Harvard university library is collecting and preserving, and delighted his audience with humorous sketches relative to the task of a librarian. Omar Bertram, representing the Palmer Photoplay corporation, made a short talk, declaring that the crying need of the motion picture industry is suitable material for production, and touched upon the requirements of this class of writing.

The members of the club enjoyed a distinct treat in the original poems read by Dr. G. Perry, of Georgia Tech; Dr. Thorwald Jacobs, of Oglethorpe, and Dr. W. F. Melton, of Emory. These poems were beautiful in sentiment and revealed depth of feeling, which is the fundamental basis of all true poetry.

The poetry of Henry E. Harmon, of the Southern Literary Magazine, was never more deeply appreciated than at this meeting, when Mrs. W. C. Jamison, of the Georgian, read two beautiful selections from his "Collected Poems and Windows of the Soul."

Miss Nell R. Murphy, of Gainesville, Ga., read an interesting short talk on the late Woodrow Wilson, touching upon the influence which the poet Wordsworth exerted upon him, and interpreting some of the poet's lines as a sort of prophecy relative to the coming of the beloved Woodrow Wilson.

A delightful musical program was rendered by Mrs. Paul Bryan and Mrs. J. B. McNally, daughter of Dr. W. F. Melton, of Emory. Mrs. Bryan played two piano selections, while Mrs. McNally sang three solos, choosing a selection from Frank L. Stanton's songs as a tribute to his position in the sphere of poetry.

Miss Hough makes flying visits back to her headquarters here and it is with great pleasure that Atlanta welcomes her.

Next week takes her to Chicago for the training week for captains which precedes the convention. Miss Hough will then stay on for the convention which will be held in Chicago the week after, from April 29 to May 2.

Convention news will be released shortly. According to a recent interview with Mrs. Albert Thornton, vice president of the national, Atlanta will have quite as wonderful a program to report this year as last.

Regular Meeting At Decatur Club.

The Decatur Woman's club will hold the regular meeting at the Decatur Presbyterian church, Friday, April 18, at 3 o'clock.

Since this session will be the last before the expiration of the term which had been extended for the charter membership of the club, May 1, Mrs. Frank B. Pond, president, stresses the importance of attendance at this meeting of all women who desire to affiliate with the organization at this time.

Mrs. D. P. McGeachy, treasurer, will be at the church a half hour before the meeting to receive dues and issue membership cards.

The speakers for the afternoon will be Mrs. W. B. Price Smith and Miss Etelka Weiss.

Scout Director Here for Week.

Miss Dorris Hough, regional director of nine southeastern states for the girl scouts, is in Atlanta for the week.

HUSBAND IN WAR OF 1812

Widow of Virginia Militiaman Still Living—Black-Draught "A Household Remedy with Us," She Says.

Kingsport, Tenn.—Mrs. Fannie V. Thompson, who lives just across the state line from here in Scott County, Georgia, is the widow of George Washington Thompson, who fought in the War of 1812. Although she was age 11 when her husband, Thompson, was killed, she is now 85 years old and doesn't look that age. Her life has been, and still is, an active one, and she takes a great interest in the affairs of the day.

"Two years ago," says Mrs. Thompson, "while I was visiting relatives in Russell County, Virginia, I read about Black-Draught. It seemed to be a very remarkable medicine, so I thought I would try it. When I got home, my daughter got a box of this medicine at the store and we began to use it in our family."

"Black-Draught is a good reliable medicine. It is a household remedy with us for all sorts of trouble, caused by the strong lime-water we have to drink in this country."

"Occasionally I suffer from headaches caused from constipation and biliousness and for it I have it. I have used Black-Draught for the past two years. My health has been good."

Black-Draught is used, with satisfaction, by millions. Try it.

Atlanta Chapter D. A. R. Celebrates 33rd Birthday

The Atlanta chapter, D. A. R., met Tuesday afternoon at 3 o'clock at Craigie House. In the absence of the regent, Mrs. Dan Wylie, who is in Washington attending the Continental Congress, the second vice regent, Mrs. Charles M. Love, presided.

After a short business session, Mrs. R. L. Andrus read resolutions of sympathy on the death of Mrs. Lewis Thomas, a beloved member of the chapter.

The meeting Tuesday marked the 33rd anniversary of Atlanta chapter, and Mrs. Love paid a beautiful tribute to the organization in offering birthday congratulations, and then read a telegram of greeting from the regent, Mrs. Wylie.

Mrs. Thomas Flagler sang a group of songs, most charmingly accompanied by Mrs. Julius DeGivie.

Mrs. Robert Blackburn gave an original poem in honor of the chapter's birthday. Mrs. Frank L. Woodruff read a very interesting paper, "The Story of Our Historic Gavel."

The center of interest for the afternoon was the elaborate and artistic birthday cake which was cut by the ex-regents, or their representatives.

This beautiful birthday celebration was inaugurated by Mrs. A. McD. Wilson when she was regent of Atlanta chapter.

The registration of Mrs. Charles M. Love, second vice regent, was accepted with sincere regret. Mrs. Love will leave at an early date to make her future home in Florida. She has been a most valuable member of the Atlanta chapter, having served in a number of offices, always taking an active part in the constructive program of the chapter.

An informal tea followed the program.

Bible Class To Entertain.

An informal buffet luncheon will be given by the members of the Men's Bible class of the First Methodist church, on Friday evening at 6:30 o'clock.

Short speeches and music will constitute the program. All members of the class and former members are urged to attend. This luncheon is given for the purpose of discussing the future work of the class and enlargement of its membership. Dr. Harvey W. Cox, president of Emory university, is the teacher of the class.

Overture and Intermezzo

Say what we will, the most interesting overture is expressed in themes of feminine apparel; the most enthralling intermezzo is that symphony of color and harmony found in the exquisite creations for women's wear to be seen here.

The Most Becoming Evening Dress For You

Is described here or will be found in our salon of evening wear.

Cinderella's fairy godmother could have conjured nothing more exquisite than this dress of gold-colored chiffon, beaded in gold and pearls. The gold cobweb lace is threaded with pearls, made over a slip of gold chiffon.

Truly exquisite is a Nemser model of light tan chiffon over a slip of peach-colored crepe. Most elaborate hand-beaded designs in pastel shades, bronze and pearls. The slip is finished at the bottom with lace weighted all round with a row of the tiniest pearl buttons.

A dainty little bouffant model of black Georgette is formed over a slip of flesh-colored Georgette. There's a deep flounce of cream Chantilly lace and a beaded flower motif on the quaint bodice. This charming model is surprisingly inexpensive.

Poudre blue chiffon over the same material in pink is very "French" in coloring. Charmingly bouffant, trimmed in silk lace and two-toned ribbon. Another inexpensive model.

Evening Gowns

Are Priced

$35.00 to $249.50

Dress Accessories

Combs in strikingly beautiful Spanish designs set with brilliants and vari-colored jewels. Pearl beads, beads of exquisite crystals and in colorings to match costumes. Bracelets to match beads and ear-bobs. Ear-bobs in countless designs.

MAIN AISLE

Distinctive Apparel For Opera And Special Occasions Where Correct Attire Is Important

This Nemser model is a symphony in color—flesh marquisette with the softest pastel shadings. The embroidery is in tiny iridescent beads, so exquisitely done that it seems the little Easter flowers themselves have been drifted against the frock on a summer breeze.

The gown is made over two foundation slips, the first of flat crepe in flesh, weighted at the bottom with a fringe of beads; the second of white Georgette and lace.

The effect is incomparably dainty—a fitting dress for milady's most important opera engagements.

The wrap is a large white shawl with very deep fringe and striking embroideries in brilliant-colored roses.

The Newest Gloves

Never were gloves so unusual, so attractive in design—so well qualified to impart a smart touch to the costume for street, afternoon, or evening. Every new creation from abroad as well as the finest of American makes—kid and fabric.

MAIN AISLE

Charming Costumes

For Wear

At Opera Matinee

Gowns for afternoon wear will play an important role during opera week.

Distinguished for beauty of line is this dress of white flat crepe with front panel of Venetian lace. There's a single close-placed row of blue and orchid crystal buttons down the panel. Unusual is the quaint double collar of white marquisette bound in blue and orchid chiffon.

The matching scarf of crepe has ends of pleated blue orchids, bound in orchid.

A youthful, bouffant model of flesh-colored Elizabeth crepe has just a suggestion of sleeves. There are inserts of tucked net with lace and trimmings of silvered blue ribbons.

There's an ultra-smart Vogel model of black and white flat crepe, a wrap-around design of exquisitely simple lines. The long, fringed scarf of black and white is used in lieu of sleeves.

The wrap is more often a black or dark model of satin or crepe in cape or cape-coat effect, suitable for wear with both afternoon and evening dresses. Charming new wraps are arriving daily.

Governing Board Of Capital City Club Is Entertained

Mr. and Mrs. E. Rivers entertained at an elaborate dinner Tuesday evening at their country place, "Roxboro," on the Roxboro road. The honor guests of the occasion were the members of the governing board of the Capital City club, of which Mr. Rivers is a popular member.

Covers were placed for Thomas H. Daniel, R. H. Martin, Evelyn Harris, Eugene Harrington, James T. Williams, T. J. Lyon, E. R. Black, Jr., W. C. Wardlaw, C. T. Nunnally, James L. Dickey, Marion Smith, Mr. Rivers, Major John S. Cohen and Frank Inman.

Graceful bouquets of peach and apple blossoms adorned the room where the guests were received. Other spring blossoms including tulips, jonquils and long-stemmed tulips filled bowls and baskets which were placed on console tables and cabinets. The guests were seated at a long table which was overlaid with a cloth of imported lace and adorned in the center with a silver basket filled with spring flowers in varying shades. Silver candlesticks held pink unshaded tapers and silver compotes were filled with pink and white bonbons. Thomas Daniel, retiring president of the club, who has served most efficiently during the past two years, was presented a beautiful silver platter and to Evelyn Harris, retiring secretary, whose untiring efforts in behalf of the club have won him hosts of admirers, was also presented a handsome piece of silver.

House and Lot Bought for Kindergarten

At the monthly meeting of the Woman's section of the Atlanta Race Relations committee held Tuesday the Woman's club, Mrs. W. A. Albright, chairman, reported that all arrangements have been made for the purchase by the committee of the house and lot on Rock street now used as a day nursery and kindergarten for colored children, and for cooperation with the Gate City Free Kindergarten association for its continued and more effective operation. The property bargained for has been supplied to the association rent free for the past seven years by Mrs. Rowell, the owner, and is sold to the committee on very favorable terms. The kindergarten association, an organization of public spirited colored women, has conducted and financed a number of colored kindergartens for the past 15 years, and is now operating three in needy sections of the city. The race relations committee, in addition to acquiring the Rock street property, is planning to help also by providing clinics, securing milk for under-nourished infants, and supplying clothes for the most needy children. Mrs. B. L. Bugg's committee reported that arrangements are practically complete for a week's Sunday school and missionary institute for colored women to be conducted this month under the auspices of the committee. Mrs. Frank Smith, chairman of the committee on schools, reported that her committee is seeking means of that place.

Young Matrons of St. Mark's Will Give Easter Egg Party

The Young Matrons of St. Mark's Methodist Episcopal church will give their annual Easter egg hunt Saturday afternoon, April 19, on the grounds of Washington seminary at 3 o'clock.

Mrs. Carl Fischer is general chairman for the hunt and will be assisted by the following chairmen and their committees: Mrs. John Joseph, gate; Mrs. Fred Shaffer, grab bag; Mrs. J. C. Harris, Jr., balloons; Mrs. W. H. Bailey, candy; Mrs. Anne Bates Walsh, eggs; Mrs. Douglas McCleskey, prizes; Mrs. Paul O'Keller, ice cream; Mrs. Katie Armstrong, novelties.

Admission to the grounds for each child will be 10 cents. A number of prizes will be given, including live rabbits.

Booths will be provided where ice cream cones, home-made candy and balloons can be secured.

Two large grab bags will be provided containing unique novelties. A number of surprise features are being planned which will prove enjoyable for the children.

This group of young matrons from St. Mark's church gives annually an egg hunt, which has proven to be in the past years a delightful occasion.

All friends and members of the church are asked to bring or send their children where a good time awaits them, also at the same time helping the young women of the church to "carry on" with their splendid work.

Ladies' Auxiliary Visit Veterans. Twenty of the ladies of the G. A. R. auxiliary corps visited the veterans of the U. S. Public Health hospital on Peachtree road, Friday afternoon.

Along with Mrs. C. A. Kling, the president of the auxiliary, the ladies made a two-hour stay, carrying through the several wards boxes of candy, baskets of fruit, cigarettes and doughnuts. A number of new records were donated and a promise of an Edison machine soon to be given by the company.

Maccabees To Give Easter Dance. The Easter dance by the Maccabees will be held Monday night, April 21, in the McKenzie building, will be an interesting affair.

Among the attractive features will be a dance by Miss Lila Buchanan, teacher of aesthetic dancing, and a selection by little three-year-old Major Pickett.

The Garland Society orchestra will furnish the music. Tickets are on sale by the Maccabees or can be secured Monday, April 21, at the Booth-Cable Piano company.

Mrs. Sol Lewis, Mrs. Theresa Grant Hoffman are the committee in charge. Refreshments will be served. Admission $1.

Miss Carter Weds Mr. Bridgeforth. An announcement of interest to a wide circle of friends in Memphis and Atlanta was the marriage of Miss Jessie Carter, of Memphis, Tenn., to Clarence Bridgeforth, formerly of Memphis, but now of Atlanta, on Monday evening, April 14, at the residence of Mr. and Mrs. W. D. Kerby, cousins of the bride.

Mrs. Bridgeforth is the only daughter of Mrs. Nellie Harrison Majors, formerly of Columbus, Ga., and is a young woman of exceptional beauty, intellect and charm of manner.

Mr. Bridgeforth is popular in the business world and holds a responsible position with the Illinois Central railroad.

Mr. and Mrs. Bridgeforth left for New York and on their return will at home to their friends at the Cecil hotel.

Miss Carter Weds Mr. Lamar, of Macon. Mrs. June Courtney announces the marriage of her daughter, Lillian Carter, to Minter Wimberly Lamar, of Macon, Ga.

Mr. and Mrs. Lamar have gone to Miami, Fla., for residence and will at home at 1322 North Bay Shore drive.

Dance Invitations Are Recalled. William Marion Camp, Jr., has recalled until May 10 invitations for a dancing party which was to have been given April 19.

Palmer "Scared to Death." In the brisk play of question and answer, Means described Mr. Palmer, "looking scared to death" coming out of Mr. Daugherty's office after charges against his administration of alien property had been pushed to the point of a mention of indictment.

One moment the committee devoted to Howard Manning, of Ohio, when its "prosecutor," Senator Wheeler, democratic, Montana, demanded the production of this witness by Mr. Daugherty's counsel. In spite of his own refusal to appear, he demanded likewise to know whether it was true that indictments had been returned in New York against Manning and Jess Smith, for liquor permit transactions, but "thumped up."

He was advised by George A. Chamberlain, of Mr. Daugherty's counsel, to apply to the district attorney for this information.

Two other issues arose, one in the hearing, when Means quoted William J. Burns, chief of the bureau of investigation of the department of justice, as advising Mr. Daugherty against pressing the Montana indictment against Senator Wheeler. The other developed after the hearing when the Western Union Telegraph company by letter to the committee confirmed its previous verbal refusal to give the committee any more telegrams exchanged between principals in the senate investigation.

POLICE CHIEF REMOVED FOLLOWING KIDNAPING. Chapel Hill, N. C., April 16.—As a result of the removal from Chapel Hill yesterday afternoon of Carl Weigand, local attorney, wanted in Columbus, Ohio, on a charge of non-support of a minor child by his first wife, Chief of Police George T. Featherstone, of Chapel Hill, today was suspended from office.

Featherstone is charged with having assisted O. C. Kaffits, a detective of Columbus, in leaving the state with Weigand after he had been advised by Weigand's attorney, R. O. Everett, of Durham, N. C., that the extradition papers which Kaffits presented had been reviewed and approved by Governor Cameron Morrison, City Manager Knox in ordering Featherstone's removal, stated that he had been "over-zealous in his activity" in connection with the case.

NEW YORK WOMEN VISIT BERRY SCHOOLS. Rome, Ga., April 16.—A party of 15 wealthy New York women, guests of Mr. and Mrs. G. L. Carlisle, of New York, are visitors at Berry schools today. One member of the party is Mrs. John H. Hammond. They arrived last night on a special private car over the Southern railway and will remain here until tomorrow.

All members of the party are said to be engaged in special welfare work and were attracted to the Berry schools by the interest of Mr. Carlisle, who is a trustee of the institution. The visitors inspected the buildings and large estate of the schools, which are devoted to the education of mountain boys and girls.

Birthday Party Is Postponed.

Invitations that were to be issued to the birthday party of little Miss Tommie Perdue Quin on Friday afternoon, April 18, have been delayed on account of the illness of the little honor guest. The party has been postponed until a later date.

Needlework Guild Installs Mrs. Boykin As New President

Installation of Mrs. Basil Manley Boykin as president of the Atlanta branch of the Needlework Guild featured the regular spring meeting of that organization held Wednesday morning at the home of Mrs. Arnold Brooks, honorary president, on Juniper street.

Mrs. Boykin, former president of the Atlanta Woman's Club, was chosen head of the guild at the January meeting and succeeds Mrs. Murray Hubbard. Mrs. Clara Bemis has been elected publicity chairman.

The Needlework Guild is an international charitable society.

FORBES INDICTED FOR ARMY SALES

Baltimore, Md., April 16.—Charles R. Forbes, former director of the veterans' bureau, was indicted today by the federal grand jury here at the close of an investigation into the sale of army supplies alleged to be worth $3,000,000 to the Thomson-Kelly company, of New York and Boston, for a price said to be $600,000.

Nathan Thompson, head of the company which bought the supplies, and commander Charles R. O'Leary, of the United States navy, who was chief of the supply division of the veterans' bureau at Perryville, Md., at the time the goods were sold, also were indicted.

The charge against Forbes, Thompson and O'Leary is conspiracy to defraud the government.

PALMER, HARRISON, DAUGHERTY NAMED

Washington, April 16.—Two former attorneys general of the United States, A. Mitchell Palmer and Harry M. Daugherty, and one former governor general of the Philippines, Francis Burton Harrison, were accused of serious and personal wrongdoing during rapidly shifting testimony today before the senate Daugherty investigating committee.

Only two witnesses were heard, one Gaston B. Means, investigating committee active in international and domestic affairs, and the other, George W. Storck, accountant for the department of justice, but they made repeated accusations of monetary misconduct and later of default in department of justice prosecutions.

Means took his account of bribetaking straight to the core. He testified that he had been approached by Mr. Daugherty by replying statements he ascribed to Jess W. Smith, late companion of the former attorney general. He also confirmed and extended impressions left by Storck, whose testimony was a prolonged self-portrait upon the orders of John W. H. Cram, former assistant attorney general, into the conduct of the alien property office.

Vaudeville Will Be Given at North Ave. School

The "Athletic Animation," presented by the Athletic association of the North Avenue Presbyterian school is to be one of the most entertaining and unique affairs of the school year.

Being unusual, it cannot be classed under any one type of amusement, but the general idea is a vaudeville with circus refreshments. The vaudeville is composed of several numbers ranging from musical acts to daring acrobatic stunts.

The performances will be next Friday, April 18, from 3:30 to 5 o'clock, and from 8:10 o'clock, in the school gym, 509 Ponce de Leon avenue. Admission is 35 cents in the afternoon and 50 cents at night. A cordial invitation is extended to the public.

Atlanta Presbytery Plans Many Features For McDonough Meet

McDonough, Ga., April 16.—(Special.)—The 115th annual session of the Atlanta Presbytery will be held with the Presbyterian church here April 22-24. The Presbytery is composed of 50 ministers and 70 churches situated in the 20 counties surrounding Atlanta.

The first sermon will be preached by Dr. J. S. Lyons, pastor of the First Presbyterian church, Atlanta. Following women plan to serve lunch and dinner in the dining room of the church to the delegates and visitors.

Among speakers on the program will be Rev. R. C. Reed, Columbia, S. C.; Rev. W. S. Wilson, Atlanta; Rev. A. E. Dallas, LaGrange; Rev. J. E. Hannah, Newnan; Rev. William Hook, Rev. J. S. Lyons, Rev. J. W. Caldwell, Dr. C. A. Campbell, Atlanta; Rev. E. L. Barker, Carrollton, and Rev. J. F. Brown, Porterdale.

Anne stopped as if someone had muzzled her; when she began to talk again her voice had a hard, strained note, and she changed the subject abruptly, calling Suzanne's attention to a woman on the other side of the room from where the girl in mourning sat. Suzanne, who had turned only half-way round to see Mrs. Haynes' second cousin, wondered at the change, but did not concern herself with it. Anne's conversation was always like a grasshopper alighting on a new topic every five seconds.

Suzanne hardly knew what she was eating, and cared not at all. What would Geoff say about the earrings and necklace that she had just bought. Would he think that she had been hopelessly extravagant? He had rebuked her but had never scolded her; had always given her money without her asking for it, and had paid her bills without a murmur. But he hated extravagance, she knew, and thing—probably Geoff got home before he expected to, and that isn't surprising—only I don't know whether to tell you or not—

"Anne, what in the world are you driving at?" exclaimed Suzanne, in exasperation. "What's all this about Geoff?"

"Well, you said that he was coming home tomorrow—and he's lunching here today with his secretary, Mrs. Vale; they're sitting over there in the corner," was the prompt reply.

For a moment the room whirled about Suzanne. She felt cold all over, and hideously sick. She gripped the table hard with both hands. Anne leaned forward, holding out a glass of water, but she could not lift a hand to take it; she felt that if she let go of the table she would go crashing to the floor.

"I mustn't faint—I must control myself," she kept repeating; but it seemed hours to her before she could speak to Anne Graham.

"Yes, he must have got home sooner than he expected to," her voice was saying; she wondered where she got strength and will to say it. "That's one of the exciting things about Geoff; you never know when he'll appear; his plans are always so uncertain."

Anne Graham took pity on her; she was so white, and looked so ill. "Let's go, shall we?" she asked, summoning the waiter. "They have frightful desserts in this place; I'm sure we wouldn't like what we ordered, no matter what it was."

Suzanne nodded, without speaking; she had glanced over her shoulder, and seen Geoff, leaning across his table, talking earnestly to Mrs. Vale. When they had been married so short a time, when he had said that he cared so much for her, how could he deceive her so!

The Half-Time Wife

CHAPTER XVI.
A Cruel Surprise.

Suzanne followed Anne Graham across the restaurant to a table in the middle of the room. She felt that it would have been worth any price to escape this luncheon; she was in no mood for gossip with the lively Anne.

"Half the world seems to be lunching here today," Miss Graham commented, as she tossed her coat back and drew off her gloves. "There's Will Howard with his sister-in-law; they're always together. And look at Mrs. Adams; did you ever see such a smart hat? Her husband will be bankrupt the first thing anyone knows, and she'll have done it. She was the prettiest girl in town before she was married, and she can't forget it; keeps right on buying awfully expensive clothes and trying to still to be a beauty, though her looks have faded dreadfully. My dear, look quick, at that girl in mourning over in the corner. See her? Well, she's Mrs. Haynes' second cousin, and she—"

Geoff is over there with his secretary!

For a moment the room whirled about Suzanne. She felt cold all over, and hideously sick. She gripped the table hard with both hands. Anne leaned forward, holding out a glass of water, but she could not lift a hand to take it; she felt that if she let go of the table she would go crashing to the floor.

"I mustn't faint—I must control myself," she kept repeating; but it seemed hours to her before she could speak to Anne Graham.

"Yes, he must have got home sooner than he expected to," her voice was saying; she wondered where she got strength and will to say it. "That's one of the exciting things about Geoff; you never know when he'll appear; his plans are always so uncertain."

Anne Graham took pity on her; she was so white, and looked so ill. "Let's go, shall we?" she asked, summoning the waiter. "They have frightful desserts in this place; I'm sure we wouldn't like what we ordered, no matter what it was."

Suzanne nodded, without speaking; she had glanced over her shoulder, and seen Geoff, leaning across his table, talking earnestly to Mrs. Vale. When they had been married so short a time, when he had said that he cared so much for her, how could he deceive her so!

WOODBINE WINS AS COUNTY SEAT

Final settlement of the long-drawn-out contest between the towns of St. Mary's and Woodbine as to which is to be the county seat of Camden county was settled in favor of Woodbine by a decision handed down by the state supreme court Wednesday.

The decision will result in dismissing a temporary injunction secured by citizens of St. Mary's to prevent county officers from removing appurtenances of the county seat from their town to Woodbine, after the legislature, at its summer session of 1923, passed a bill making Woodbine the county seat.

Plaintiffs in the suit attacked the constitutionality of the act changing the county seat on the ground that the legislature had no right to go over the head of the secretary of state, who had previously decided in favor of St. Mary's.

The two-thirds vote of qualified voters is required to authorize such a change, and the election in Camden, which was first reported for Woodbine, was later contested by St. Mary's. The secretary of state reversed the result on the ground that two-thirds did not vote for Woodbine.

In its decision Wednesday, the supreme court held that the very fact that the legislature passed the bill giving the county seat to Woodbine was sufficient proof that it had properly investigated the matter and was satisfied that the requisite majority of voters for that city had been cast. In answer to the argument that such ruling leaves citizens at the mercy of caprice of the legislature in such matters, the decision answered that oaths of legislators to uphold the constitution of the state was sufficient guarantee against this.

HULL ATTACKS HUGHES SPEECH

Washington, April 16.—The good character of President Coolidge is not sufficient ground for labeling him the ideal executive, Chairman Cordell Hull, of the democratic national committee, declared in commenting on the keynote speech delivered by Secretary of State Hughes at New York.

"There are tens of millions of American citizens of equally good character," Hull said. "Character alone is not sufficient for an ideal president. Courage, initiative, decision, constructive statesmanship and aggressive leadership, which render one capable of substantial achievements, are indispensable qualifications for a successful president. A person of the highest character, who is surrounded by influences more or less vicious and corrupt, and who is incapable or indisposed to aggressively free himself from such influences, can in no remote sense escape responsibility for official and administrative inaction, indecision, delay and failure of achievement in the face of the most wonderful opportunities."

"Every citizen knows that today the republican party is dominated by the worst combination of corruption, business and politics known to the political annals of this or any country. They furnish the huge campaign funds; they have a strangle hold on the republican national organization; they dominate republican conventions and nominate republican candidates; they prostitute many agencies of the government for the purpose of private gain."

LOCAL ELECTRICIANS IN SPECIAL MEETING

More than 100 Atlantans interested in the electrical business, including merchants, jobbers, dealers, contractors, central station representatives, architects and engineers, attended a special meeting and banquet of the Atlanta Electrical association Wednesday night at the Capital City club. The banquet was held in order that the association members might outline work done by the organization with a view of interesting electrical workers who are non-members. Nearly half of those present were representatives of concerns not members of the association.

Preston S. Arkwright, president of the Georgia Railway and Power company, and W. R. C. Smith, president of the W. R. C. Smith Publishing company, publisher of "The Electrical South," were principal speakers. Others on the program were: "Chap" Robert, of Robert & Co., architects and engineers, and past president of the Georgia Electrical association; E. H. Ginn, manager of the General Electric company, of Atlanta; Harold Hill, manager of the southeastern district of the Western Electric company; L. L. Shivers, president of the Carter Electric company; W. S. Ruzz, general sales manager of the Western Electric and Manufacturing company, of Pittsburgh; "Dot" Hammond, of the Southern Electrical Supply company; and E. A. Wilson-Lawson, of The Georgian.

Mr. Arkwright told of the need of cooperation in the electrical industries of Atlanta, and stated that concentrated measures must be taken to educate Atlantans in convenience and practical uses of electricity.

Mr. Smith chose "Opportunity" as his subject, and his inspirational address pointed the way to many electrical opportunities which would be made possible through cooperation, he said.

A. G. Stanford, of Robert & Co., president of the association, acted as toastmaster. Robert H. Scott, of the Carter Electric company, is vice president, and was in active charge of the meeting.

Lovers of Opera Given Foretaste Wednesday Night

More than 2,000 Atlantans had a foretaste Wednesday night of grand opera, as prelude to the Metropolitan season, when a number of the most popular artists of the opera were heard here next week were sung by Erik's Troubadours, assisted by well-known Atlanta vocalists.

The program was under the direction of Signor Emilio Volpi, prominent teacher of voice and coach of grand opera, and included such well-known arias as the duet from "Faust," the trio from "Faust," the quartet scene from "Rigoletto," the sextet from "Lucia," the "Miserere" chorus and scene from "Il Trovatore," and a number of other selections. An innovation was presented in a set of real anvil, in order that the "Anvil Chorus" might be portrayed in its full reality.

Among those who took part were: Nora Allen, lyric soprano, formerly a member of the Chicago Grand Opera company; Emily Watts, coloratura soprano; Frances Russo, dramatic soprano; Lillian Dove, mezzo soprano; John Hinton, Sam Calloway, Floyd R. Fuller and John Clotworthy, tenors; Thomas Dendy and W. R. Lehman, baritone, and W. W. Hume, Jr., and William Van Goldtschoven, basses.

A party of 20 New York negro business men will reach Atlanta Thursday morning from Savannah. The group of leading negroes are from the north and west and are for the purpose of studying conditions of the negro race in urban centers of the south. Local negro citizens are planning to have them see many of the high spots of the educational, economic and social life of the race here, completing the program with a smoker-reception on the roof garden of the Odd Fellows' building Thursday night.

Dr. Blanche Loveridge Proves The Value of Cheerfulness

Dr. Blanche Grosbec Loveridge is the author of a new book on spiritual values.

BY MRS. MCCORD ROBERTS.

Hereditary cheerfulness is an ages old remedy for depression and around its influence on human nature, religion and science have woven many theories. "Until the third and fourth centuries," the Bible declares, "heredity shall have sway. In the life and accomplishments of Dr. Blanche Grosbec Loveridge there is nothing to contradict the Biblical edict regarding "those that love me, and keep my commandments," for peace, and beauty, and prosperity of soul are her great possessions, so abundantly owned that most Atlanta women of today have felt their helpful influence.

For years by word of mouth she has passed on her inheritance of belief in the joy of "oneness" with Christ, and of late she has been spreading her gospel of self-determination in this writing in exquisite English of this glorifying subject. Love that looks up to the stars and sees only kindly light, charity that is of the spirit as well as of things, charity that insists "be of good cheer," radiate from her when she is speaking, flow from her printed word. To an analyst, acquaintance brings up that question, "Has she made this shining soul for herself or did her mother pass on a high inheritance?"

Perhaps, for by a strange coincidence her paternal grandparents lived in Normandy along the wooded slope of the Mont P'Amour and for uncounted generations the family name had been D'Amourmont. Her father came to America to live and, marrying an English woman, the name was translated almost literally into Loveridge, and her father continued the career of a journalist—inherited from father and grandfather and a great-grandfather, all members of the staff of that famous Parisian newspaper, La Figaro.

In France it is said that the journalists come from Normandy, lawyers from Burgundy, and men of commerce from Provence. Vigorous and fair are most of the Normans and in that Dr. Loveridge has been a hereditary counts, for she is not only these in appearance, but greatly so in personality. One hesitates to stretch the "from generation to generation" theory, but Dr. Loveridge has been a teacher of note, and the French grand-mother, Gloriana Grosbec D'Amourmont, wrote the first French textbook placed in American schools.

But it has remained for the daughter of these men of letters to carry to great spiritual heights the intellectual development that marked the family, and in Dr. Loveridge's teaching and writing good is scientifically as well as spiritually set forward. In her recent book, "The Light That Lighteth," Dr. Loveridge has written a message of helpfulness that reaches every reader.

The book is dedicated to Mrs. Spencer Atkinson, to whose discernment Atlanta owes the addition as a resident of this leader of women. The Atlanta Federation of Women's Clubs has sponsored four series of lectures on mental hygiene given by Dr. Loveridge, and is planning to inaugurate classes for special training under her direction.

At a gathering of club presidents called by Mrs. Spencer Atkinson on Tuesday many prominent Atlanta women expressed their admiration for Dr. Loveridge and the big help federation work has received from the profits on lectures and the sale of the book. Mrs. H. G. Hastings, president of the fifth district, and Mrs. T. Stevens, president of the Atlanta Federation, pledged full aid in calling to the attention of club women the importance of the big help federation work as set forth in her new book on sale in the principal book stores.

EMORY-OGLETHORPE DEBATE POSTPONED

The first intercollegiate debate between Atlanta colleges, scheduled to be held tonight between Oglethorpe and Emory, has been postponed until next Thursday night on account of mid-term examinations at the latter institution, according to announcement Wednesday by university officials.

Inter-college competition in the oratorical line is rapidly growing in favor in this section and meetings will probably be arranged by both of these institutions with Tech, it was stated.

The subject of the Oglethorpe-Emory debate is that "The French occupation of the Ruhr was justifiable," and is one that has attracted a great deal of interest.

Oglethorpe debaters will champion the affirmative side, while Emory representatives will contend that the occupation of the Ruhr by the French was unjustifiable.

The three Oglethorpe debaters for this first Atlanta inter-collegiate debate are Mitchell Bishop, Abe Orvaschel and Julius Pearlstein. Emory representatives are Henry Bullock, Max Rose, John Maxwell. Emory debaters have previously argued this question.

Is the Woman Looking for New Standards of Quality?

MAGAZINE writers say that the woman's vote has helped to improve politics. There is no argument, that for many national reforms and new standards of quality, we all owe thanks to the intelligent, constructive perseverance of the American Housewife.

And it is gratifying for the world's largest organization of dairy farmers to thank publicly the thinking, intelligent housewife—whose desire to have a richer, creamier evaporated milk has made such a tremendous demand for DAIRYLEA Brand.

AS YOU know, DAIRYLEA is the concentrated wholesomeness of the purest, fresh bottle milk and is produced in New York State, where milk laws are most stringent. It is the world's most safe-guarded milk—the same milk which U. S. Senator Copeland, when Health Commissioner of New York City, called "the best in the world."

When you buy DAIRYLEA Brand Evaporated Milk, you are buying direct from the farmers who produce it—and each can has the guarantee of the 70,000 farmers composing the Dairymen's League Co-operative Association.

Because this immense business is owned and operated by farmers themselves, your DAIRYLEA Evaporated Milk will always remain these 70,000 farmers' own product, from cows they themselves own.

The Honorable Mr. Bing

BY HORATIO LANKFORD KING

After thirty minutes he said to Skibbers as if he had not said the same thing before:

"We'll wait here until she comes out."

"That's what we been doin', ain't it?" complained Skibbers. "I like action."

"I thought you were going to get some anachorites," said Mr. Bing.

"What's anachorites?" demanded Mr. Skibbers, feeling he was being jiggered.

"The smallest of fish," returned Mr. Bing, looking down at the questioner. "If I stay in this town much longer I'll get vile."

They waited another thirty minutes, when Mr. Bing suddenly decided that Lank was in the wrong crowd, pushing through the doors in that always staid and inevitable fag-end of an emotional spree. They would take this spree back to their offices, hall bed rooms, or through the Hudson tubes to Jersey City or Passaic, and possibly accept the challenge—for a frost. Yes, they were generally frosts, "them pictures."

Mr. Bing pulled Skibbers after him to the street, and waited there to ascertain which direction their quarry would take. Seeing Miss Banks and her dapper affinity get in a taxi, they flagged one like it and followed. Mr. Bing flourishing a bill and saying to the chauffeur it was like if he didn't lose sight of the first taxi.

"An' if you let 'em slip, I'll have you for speedin'," said Skibbers, showing his hand.

But that taxi driver only needed the sight of money. A tail-spin in an airplane may have its thrills, but hogging and cork-screwing up a crowded New York thoroughfare at a busy hour in a taxi is often more dangerous. If you don't land on your nose, you can land in jail. But going up Fifth avenue as far as the south end gates of Central Park was modest travel; it was keeping the object of the pursuit in sight, and seeing it didn't elude you in a side street.

Central Park the first car turned west and kept west until Riverside drive was reached. It turned in at the curb in front of a big apartment house with iron grill doors four blocks up from the entering point.

"That's the Laveria," said Skibbers, as if he had anticipated something. "Say! We was in there only a few days ago. How come we overlooked their names? I didn't skip a door."

"Perhaps they are living incognito," "You mean light-housekeeping?"

"Under other names," explained Mr. Bing.

"Sure as Mike!" said Skibbers. "Couple of dubs not to think of that, weren't we?"

"It's what you get for being a detective, Mr. Skibbers," returned Mr. Bing. "But now don't let that pair get out of your sight. They're going in. Follow them up and get the floor and number."

"I could have thought of that myself," came from Skibbers. This Mr. Bing was a very superior-looking person indeed, and not so easy to fool after all. And he could be a sarcastic old turnip with a way of slyly intimating things kind of blunt but sharp, that any butter-knife would cut.

Skibbers now and then felt as if he had been buttered all over with some invisible, elusive substance which this tall, serene-faced, but somehow could apply as if with a shovel, Skibbers was used.

But he followed the two into the building, got the right floor and the right apartment number, and came back looking wiser than he had ever looked. He thought he had discovered something quite accidentally to give him the moral right to do a little of the insulting himself. He stood regarding Mr. Bing with a leer on his face.

"Say," he ejaculated, "what kind of a game is this anyway? I was in there, and what do I discover?"

"I am sure I don't know, but possibly not what you were sent after," returned Mr. Bing, not yet aware of Skibbers' leer. "I couldn't imagine, unless—"

"Aw, cut it! I'm wise now, my sir. One of those tall lookers is your wife! You been makin' a goat of me, an' no wonder we made no progress. That ain't no way to treat a man even if he does draw pay!"

"Explain yourself," demanded Mr. Bing as calmly as he might under such circumstances.

"Well, my sir, it's none of my business, but the rate Mr. Skibbers, 'so long' I'm paid. But it's a reflection on the dignity of my position. I want to tell you, Mr. Bing, all before I say any more, an' before you dust counterdick, you better come along back with me and see for yourself. Names, my sir, speak louder than words. I'll show you something!"

"But there's nothing in that building that interests me," said Mr. Bing, uneasily. "I know now where the picture lives, and I shouldn't make another move until tomorrow until I see Mr. Sawyer. And until I know Miss Banks isn't around, I only wish to speak to the other lady."

"Hum-m!" was Skibbers' answer. "I ain't doubtin' your disinclination to see anybody a bit. But if I was you I'd show more nerve when you're caught up with."

"Yes, my sir; caught up with. Come on back with me, an' take a look for yourself. I won't make no open accusations you could report to my chief and get me fired, but I'm willing to let some names speak for themselves. I am!"

This was something, because of the crazy Skibbers' mysterious air, that might deserve his instant looking into, decided Mr. Bing, but not overly moved. And a madman was a person to deal with gently. He'd know him and go up and see what the matter was—what indeed could be the matter. Skibbers leading the way and saying no more, they entered the building together and went up in an elevator to the eighth floor. Skibbers led the way again down a long hall, and with a gesture both triumphant as it was openly insulting, pointed to a card tacked on the door in front of which they stood. "Read it yourself!" he hissed.

The card read: MRS. LILLY GION TRAVERSE MRS. BEVERLY BING

"The—the—that woman!" burst from Mr. Bing. "The lying, deceiving—Oh, that woman! Skibbers, it's a lie. I never had a wife in my life. She has no legal right to my name. It's a humbug!"

"Why is it a humbug?"

"Look here," said Mr. Bing, calm again, but pointing his handsome, heavy walking-stick. "Would you like me to leave some of the evidence of my presence on your skull?" and his eyes blazed as they had blazed at two other detectives who had invaded a gentleman's apartments in a hotel, looking for bootleggers.

"Well, maybe so—maybe she is a fake," agreed Skibbers, warily. "Maybe I was wrong, Mr. Bing, but here in New York—"

"That's your trouble. It's all you can see in one another—dirt, filth, dishonesty, crookedness!" chorled Mr. Bing. "But I forgive you—your damned ignorance!"

"Well, all right," said Skibbers. "I guess she ain't your wife. But maybe she thinks she's got some rights, you know. You can't shake 'em off entirely, these women," he added hastily, they stick, they have some rights, rights, where there hasn't been no marriage an' the law don't protect 'em. I ain't studied human nature, but I can see, for nothing, you understand. An' I got a heart. I'm for women, generally. That's the way with rich guys—not meanin' you, Mr. Bing, but that's the way with 'em. Tell the truth, I been kind of indulgent for her ever since we started out chasin' her like a poor little animal from that picture show."

But Mr. Bing was over with his anger. It had been unworthy of him. He would treat this fellow for what he was worth—nothing. He bowed to the suddenly chivalrous Skibbers, dripping sarcasm in his smile.

"To tell the truth, I admire a man of your deep sympathies. It should be an object lesson to the world, though I am going to fire you as a moral acquiescence in my life too expensive to keep. For myself, I am learning about life, too, a very great deal I never knew before. And the poor little animal in here can't have my name. Saying it, he motivated as if to jerk the defamatory card from the door, then thought better. "No, let it stay there. If my name is of an protection to her, let it stay until indignation dies, or my wrath becomes dispassionate. It interests me indeed. If a few more things happen, to make me up, I'll be a different man. I shall go back home a roaring lion where once I was looked upon as a lamb. Skibbers, are you riding back with me to my hotel?"

But telling Sawyer had brought only a loud laugh from that social pirate. He thought it funny.

"Oh, leave it to Lu, Bingy. She's original, ain't she?"

"Bing-ouch! Wife, or maybe, divorcee of the Honorable Beverly Bing, of Atlanta, Georgia, Wah-hoo! Wouldn't the papers like to have it? I'll laugh myself to death. There's his thoughts returning to Lil, a mad fury burned in his small eyes that glowed like red-hot coals. "An' Lil callin' herself Traverse, eh?—a first I always knew she was crazy about. For no woman carries a picture and old letters around which she keeps locked in a trunk 'for nothing'. No, he was your kind of feller. 'Taste, crat! I know all about it, and him and Lil. He was one of them lingers, they call 'em out west. An' they didn't get married because he thought Lil wasn't educated enough, an' she must have agreed with him an' kept on bein' a fool about him. I knew it even the day we got married. She was thinkin' of that feller all the time, an' sent him money of mine. I have proof, plenty of proof."

"What did he do with the money—gamble it?"

"I don't know what he did with it. But no sure didn't send it back. I found some of his letters to her—that's how I come to know all this," said Sawyer bitterly. "An' he played on her sympathies by tellin' her how lonely an' sick he was. Women can get dippy about that kind of feller, them pink kind that fills letters with a lot of love an' sighs. Now she's quit me—fixin' to go to him!"

"Are you sure?"

"I know it six months ago. An' was payin' Lu to be on my side, because I knew Lu would do most anything for money, if it was enough to keep her in style, an' because she had some influence over Lil. She kind of dominated over me. Lu did, an' threatened to bolt if I didn't give her what she wanted. Oh, she played a game all right—she started out to play it when she pretended to be my friend and told Lil to marry me. Adventures? Say—but, never mind, I've been keepin' this to myself. An' when she got a pile of money from me, she turned traitor. Meant to do it all the time!"

"Your wife in the plot with her?"

"I don't know that."

"An' I can't believe it, Mr. Sawyer," said Mr. Bing. "Not that of her. But of course there may be another man."

"Well, even at that, can you beat it? That's the way with a woman! They'll do most anything for a man they're crazy about, but not for a man who has given them everything they wanted—that's me!"

"Perhaps," assented Mr. Bing. "Human nature is of course weak. And we all make mistakes. That is why to follow the heart is best—always best, my dear fellow. If we will only be fair, we can always see that that is best. I've never been married, and perhaps I know little about women, but I can see what it is that makes failures of so many marriages. I'll not start out my young life that way."

"I guess you sympathize with Lil, too," snarled Sawyer. "But she's my property. No other man can have her. She's my lawfully wedded wife. Understand that?"

"And you know who is payin' you a salary, too, don't you?"

"Yes, indeed."

"Where are you goin' now?"

"For a walk," said Mr. Bing. "I want to think. But he was really going to see a publisher whose name and address he had scribbled on his cuff."

"Not feelin' well, Bingy? What you got?"

"An' itch," said Mr. Bing, "called encephitis scribbendi. I'm going to see what I can do for it."

"An' anachorite," responded Mr. Bing, every other way equal, "bursting full-bloom and full-till from his bloomin' shell. Here are some of his brain fillips, Long Live the Fool, and the publisher wondered just when he could mean—Long Live the Fool!

THE GUMPS—GOOD-BY FOREVER

Mr. Bing had then taken his departure, leaving his manuscripts and address. He supposed nothing would come of the visit, that nobody would want his books, and therefore he might as well be indifferent. He had been different to most everything all his life, and there was no reason that he could see why he should change in his indifference. In fact, the Lady of the Veil was losing some of her charm for him. She had awakened something in him, something indefinite, illusive, and that was all. He would never be such a fool as to be a fool about anything—women, literature, anything. It didn't matter. Nothing was permanent. And the experiences of that day had left him with a decidedly sordid feeling. Everything, in fact, was sordid—too sordid.

As for women—well, really, he had never met the woman he cared a hang about, unless it was Rosa Bronson. Even Rosa, if anybody should ask him, meant nothing to him. He hadn't let her mean anything to him. If he had courted her, she would have rejected him. If he had asked her to marry him, she would have thought he did it because she was rich. And he was poor. So he hadn't ever done it. He had remained glacial. Paid, that was what he would call his life. Indifferent, uncommunicative, keeping his own thoughts to himself! And, so far, he had succeeded—succeeded admirably. There was nobody down in Georgia, or anywhere else, who could say he ever favored, bootlicked, or made himself too numerous. Nobody. But he had always thought a lot of Rosa, because she was smart, witty, full of sense, unconcerned, an all-round, good-looking woman.

He had paddled his own canoe this long without asking for help, and he could go on paddling it.

And he had been going to show with Sawyer and that testable Skibbers night in and day out, not having a good time. Now he would go to a show by himself, and have a good time, one of those luxurious and happy lonely times. He liked it that way best.

So he slipped away from Sawyer, and that night tackled Broadway by himself. But—a miracle!—who should he meet but Rosa Bronson herself. Glad he was that Sawyer was not with him. For a moment he thought of dodging her, then changed his mind and put himself to some trouble to catch her eye. And how well she looked, how stunning! Rosa would always look that, stunning.

If he had not been thinking of her father, he could have lifted his hat with a livelier exhibition of pleasure.

"Well, hello, Rosa! When did you come up?"

Rosa looked delighted herself, forgetting for the moment to introduce him to the people she was with.

"Well, hello, Beverly! When did you come up?"

"A few days ago, Rosa."

"And I a few days ago."

METHODIST HOSPITAL BOARD ENDS MEETING

Referring to the executive committee, with power to act, the question of erection of a new hospital in West Virginia at Fairmont or Huntington, and the acquisition of the Good Samaritan hospital at Lexington, Ky., the meeting of the general board of the Methodist Episcopal church, south, Wednesday afternoon closed one of the most important meetings in its history, according to members.

The board, in session at the offices of Dr. C. C. Jarrell, secretary, at Wesley Memorial church, authorized the erection of a hospital association of the church, to meet annually, or subject to call, in various cities. Alton O'Brien, formerly of Emory university, was elected treasurer of the association.

While final action in selecting either of the two West Virginia cities for the new hospital was left to the executive committee of the board, early action is expected to be taken. Dr. Jarrell declared Wednesday evening, Fairmont has offered to donate $250,000 toward erection of a modern hospital, if the board selects that city. Carl Bischoff and Smith Hood, secretary and vice president, respectively, of the Fairmont Chamber of Commerce, attended the meeting, which was presided over by Bishop Warren A. Candler, of Atlanta, senior bishop of the southern Methodist church. Huntington has offered to erect a hospital there.

THIS E. B. CARPENTER WAS NOT WOUNDED
E. B. Carpenter, an income tax expert, whose Atlanta address is the Atlanta hotel, has asked The Constitution to state that he is not the E. B. Carpenter who was shot Tuesday night in a mysterious shooting affair in a speeding taxicab on Ivy street. The income tax expert has been in the government's employ for 15 years, it was stated.

W. W. Orr, one of the guests, expressed the audience's appreciation of the enjoyable program.

The only other feature was the awarding of a service pin to Mrs. John Davenport, who has recently completed her fifth year with the bank.

NEYLE COLQUITT DIES AT MARYLAND HOME
Washington, April 16.—Neyle Colquitt, an attorney, who had been active in southern political life, died today at his home at Edgemore, Md. He had been ill since January. He was 46 years old.

He was twice campaign manager in Georgia for Senator Underwood, and in Alabama, and one time clerk of the senate ways and means committee.

Mr. Colquitt was born in Savannah, Ga., and was a graduate of the University of Georgia. He was president of the Georgia state society here.

Neyle Colquitt, whose death is announced in the Associated Press dispatch, as well known throughout the south for his prominence in public affairs for many years, and especially for his ability as a lawyer and political leader.

Twice campaign manager in Georgia for Senator Underwood, he has been closely affiliated with the state's political activity and leaves a wide circle of friends in Georgia and throughout other sections of the south where his influence has been felt.

His death will be a source of grief to many Atlantans who knew him and treasure his memory.

SAUNDERS APPEALS PIGGLY WIGGLY SUIT

Cincinnati, April 16.—Clarence Saunders, Memphis, Tenn., former president of Piggly Wiggly chain stores, filed an appeal in United States circuit court of appeals here today against an injunction granted by Judge J. W. Ross, of the United States district court at Memphis. The injunction was on the application of the Piggly Wiggly corporation and restrained Saunders from opening or operating a store in Memphis with a system similar to that on which the Piggly Wiggly stores are run.

The obligatory ceremony of the extinguishing of lights will be observed by White Eagle Chapter No. 216, F. & A. M., at 8 o'clock, in the hall of the R. H. Masonic temple, at 8 p. m. Thursday, April 17. All Knights Royal Croix are urged to be present. Visiting brethren especially welcomed. The ceremony of lighting the lights will be held in Eastern Sunday afternoon at 3:30 o'clock. These services WILL NOT BE OPEN TO THE PUBLIC.

LODGE NOTICES
The regular communication of the Piggly Wiggly Chapter, No. 216, F. & A. M., will be held at the Masonic hall in Decatur, Ga., on Thursday night, April 17, at 8 o'clock. Candidates for admission will be received. By order of the lodge, J. W. TURNER, W. M.

Aged Ex-Slave Is Granted Free Peddler License

"Uncle George" Smith, "somehow" 90 and a 100, "will not have to depend on the charity of the white folks he has served faithfully for sustenance in his old age if the tax committee of city council and the merchants on produce row can help it."

"Uncle George" wrinkled and grizzled and warped with age, will sing "Swanee" carols and calloosies, behind his ramshackle wagon, as long as wages and a mule and quavering voice hold together.

That was the decision of the tax committee in session Wednesday afternoon. One of "Uncle George's" white friends appeared to explain that the old dandy was one of the faithful slaves who remained at home to take care of the "white folks," when Sherman and emancipation were within earshot of Atlanta. He gets a little basketful of vegetables here and there from men along produce row who know him, and peddles them from house to house, just enough to make the few dimes it takes to keep him in food and tobacco.

This year the license tax on produce peddlers threatened to put the old man out of business, the committee was told, and force him to begin begging, the lot of many ex-slaves whose masters' families have been broken up since the war and reconstruction. The committee voted to give him free license for the rest of this year.

A representative of the Georgia Baptist hospital for remission of three-fourths of its taxes, in consideration of the charity work it does, was deferred until the next session after which, when all hospitals in the city will have opportunity to make known their claims to remission of taxes in reward for charity work.

BRADLEY DENIES PART IN HOLDUP OF CIGAR STORE

Denying that he was in any way implicated in the robbery last Wednesday night of the A. Schultze Cigar store at Broad and Marietta streets, S. J. Bradley, 27, of 292 Waldo street, Wednesday afternoon stated that he would be able to establish an alibi.

Bradley was taken into custody about 11 o'clock Wednesday morning by a patrolman on Forsyth street by Detectives E. M. Cason and W. D. McGee, who it is claimed, acted upon information given them by A. E. Allen, clerk in the cigar store, who was held up.

Bradley stated that Allen accosted him in the restaurant, drawing a pistol and threatening him with dire things if he moved, and that he was held in this way until the arrival of the officers.

"I believe Allen is crazy," Bradley stated. The prisoner also expressed the opinion that the store was not robbed.

Bradley is a disabled veteran of the world war, he said, and is drawing a pension from the government. His record is being probed by Captain T. O. Sturdivant, of the palatine department.
